WESTSIDE PEOPLE HOLD DEBATE ON SCHOOL BONDS

Some of Residents Seem to Be of Belief Section Is Not Fairly Treated

That westside residents want a westside high school and also want the westside park at the end of Patterson avenue improved and kept up were forcibly brought out at the meeting last night of the Westside Improvement Association at the Columbus avenue school. Fifty persons attended the meeting, directed by H. L. Finlay, president of the association.

The chief purpose of the meeting was a discussion of the high school question, to afford westside people an opportunity to become better informed on the subject before the meeting at the high school Thursday night, it was explained.

Prof. G. U. Moyse, principal of the Glendale Union High school, was the principal speaker of the evening and opened the discussion of the high school question.

Prof. Moyse Speaks

Prof. Moyse spoke briefly of the need and plans for a new high school on the eastside at Verdugo road and Colorado street. He told of the present and future increase in the number of high school students and of the need of adequate housing facilities and while he expressed himself as strongly in favor of a westside high school at some future date, he urged the westside people to "get behind the coming bonds and provide for the new high school on the eastside and then the matter of a westside high school can be seriously taken up and worked out."

In the discussion that followed it was brought out that a westside high school had long been the desire and need of the westside and that the residents had failed in their attempts to have the school board purchase a possible site at low figures and that now the sites considered even a year ago have more than doubled in price.

Offer 'Sort of Bribe'

Another view voiced by some of the speakers was that the eastside people were urging the westside residents to support the coming bonds, offering as sort of a bribe the tentative promise of

Girl Scouts, Troop 1, Install New Officers

Glendale Girl Scouts, Troop No. 1, held their regular meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. A. Beach, 327 Riverdale Drive. Members of Troop No. 3, and the lieutenant, Mrs. R. C. Horner, were special guests of the occasion. After the scout ceremonial, while the troop was in formation, the new patrol leaders and corporals were formally installed.

Margaret Longley presided at the business meeting, when the new officers of the troop were duly installed, as follows: Recording secretary, Lina Borthick; corresponding secretary, Florence McLaughlin; treasurer, Ruth Dana. Merit badges were awarded as follows: Amy Bainbridge, hostess; Ruth Dana, health guardian, and home-maker. This was followed by a social hour, and delicious refreshments were served by the newly elected hospitality committee, of which Carita Walker is chairman, with Margaret Longley, Lucile Allen, Katherine Stofft and Cecil Chase assistants.

Guests present were Mrs. R. C. Horner, Nellie Jepson, Rebecca Brant, Dorothy Forbes, Virginia Horner, Helen White, all of Troop 3. Other guests were Mrs. F. A. Beach, and mother, Mrs. Kemp, Mrs. Brant and Mrs. Bidwell.

Eleven members of Troop No. 2, with their captain, Miss Vera Sinclair, are enjoying a week at Camp Baldy. Mrs. R. C. Horner, who accompanied them on the trip, returned to her home yesterday and plans to return to the camp later in the week.

Semi-Conscious Girl Abandoned on Road

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—Her clothes practically torn to shreds, her face and hands bearing many cuts and bruises, Miss May Morrison, a Los Angeles visitor, was found lying in a semi-conscious condition under a tree in a lonely spot along the Los Feliz road early today by F. A. Child.

Taken to the emergency hospital where she was given first aid treatment, the girl gave a detailed account to the police of a desperate struggle following an attack by several men.

The girl told the police that she had gone automobile riding last night with several men who had a good supply of liquor and imbibed it freely. After a few drinks the girl said she discovered the machine parked on a by-road near Glendale. There, she said, followed a struggle in which she fought with two men of the party for at least half an hour until she was struck over the head with a blunt instrument and rendered unconscious.

A search was started for the men, whom the girl described to the police.

Collapse Threatens

LONDON, Aug. 9.—There were indications this evening that the inter-allied conference on German indemnities will break down within thirty-six hours despite the efforts of the Belgians and Italians to save it. Premier Lloyd George called a meeting of the cabinet for tomorrow mornnng to consider the situation. Relations between Great Britain and France are again becoming strained.

Guests From England Are Entertained Here

Mr. and Mrs. J. Marchant of Notinghamshire, England ,are guests at the P. T. Isitt home at 509 North Maryland avenue. This is the Marchants first visit to America and they are having a delightful time. They plan to remain in California until the first of September, when they will go north to San Francisco and then on east for a stay in New York before returning to England by the first of October. They were old frieds of the Isitts in England.

In honor of the Isitts and their guests a group of friends arranged an informal surprise party recently. Those arriving unexpectedly at the Isitt home for an informal social evening were Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Harrison and Miss Inez Harrison, Dr. Laura Brown and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Davis.

Mrs. Isitt is giving a luncheon Thursday complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. Marchant.

WOMAN FRACTURES HIP

Mrs. Margaret M. Adams, who fractured her right hip in San Francisco while en route back to Glendale, was brought to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital this morning. She formerly operated the Adams Hat Shop at 213 North Brand boulevard. She had been on a trip east of about six weeks' duration.

ROY L. KENT AND FAMILY RETURN FROM OUTING

Spend Month on Coast Tour and Cover 3500 Miles; Visit Noted Resorts

Roy L. Kent and family of 522 North Central avenue last night returned from a month's tour of the Pacific coast on which their Buick covered 3500 miles.

Today Mr. Kent is back in his office at 130 South Brand boulevard getting into harness again after his vacation; Mrs. Kent is home resting up and their three children, Wesley, Howard and Ethelwyn, are playing around just as if they had never been away from their own backyard.

The itinerary included a number of cities in California, Oregon and Washington and several points in British Columbia.

The furthest town reached was Sidney, Vancouver Island. To get there it was necessary for their car to be taken by boat through the San Juan archipelago which they found very picturesque. They then motored down Vancouver Island to Victoria with which they were delighted.

Great Sport in Snow

Mt. Ranier National park in Washington was visited and the Kent youngsters had a great time playing snowball on the glacier while their parents took snapshots of them. They spent a night at the Paradise Inn and considered it fairly well named only not too much so.

The route followed the Columbia river for about fifty miles on the way north. All members of the party were much impressed with the scenery.

Among the wonders of California about which little is known, according to Mr. Kent, is the petrified forest and hot springs at Calistoga. Here vast timber deposits are largely submerged by lava from Mt. St. Helena. A chunk of petrified wood from a sequoia has been brought back to Glendale. Among the geysers there, one spouts regularly every forty minutes.

"The lumber business up there certainly is booming," remarked Mr. Kent in regard to a side trip to Gray's Harbor, the origination of much of the lumber which has helped to make Glendale the fastest growing city in America. "They are working three shifts in some of the mills. Prices? I

New Structure for San Fernando Road

Realtor A. H. Wilson this week is taking out a permit for the erection of a $17,000 two-story building at 1034 South San Fernando road which will be one of the finest structures of its size in Glendale.

Mr. Wilson's nephew, A. J. Wilson of Los Angeles, is the architect for the building. A duplicate is now being occupied in Hollywood and pleased L. H. Wilson so much that he decided to copy it.

The building will have a frontage of about 66 feet on San Fernando road and 45 feet on Park avenue. The two fronts of the buildings will be of pressed brick embellished with tile.

The first floor will be occupied by three stores fronting on San Fernando road. Each will be 22 feet wide and 45 feet deep. The second floor will be divided into apartments and offices.

"We are putting up just as nice a building as possible," declared Mr. Wilson. "We feel that others will follow the example."

Mr. Wilson expects to supervise the construction of the building. He hopes to be able to start work within a few days and to have the structure completed at the same time that the new ornamental lights are turned over to the city.

Bus Line to Pool Under Consideration

Bus service to the swimming pool is not likely to become regular—at least not in Pacific Electric busses.

J. A. Birmingham, representative of the Pacific Electric Land company, which operates the busses which connect with the Pacific Electric, yesterday came to Glendale for a conference on the subject with City Manager W. H. Reeves.

After considering the location of the municipal bathhouse and checking up the bus schedule, Mr. Birmingham came to the conclusion that it would be impossible to give regular service there without putting on an additional bus at an expense of about $5000. As the local busses are now reported to be losing about $200 a month, he did not seem to be very enthusiastic about this. However, he promised to look into the matter further and see whether or not it might be possible to give occasional service.

SANTA FE CONSIDERS REDUCTION ONE-WAY FARES

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—A proposal to reduce regular one-way passenger fares between Chicago and California will be considered today by the Santa Fe railroad at a meeting of its trans-continental passenger agents, called for this purpose. The reductions planned are $10 in the fare and $2 in the sleeping car.

SAYS TARIFF WILL ADD BIG SUM TO 'LEATHER BILL'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The proposed McCumber tariff rates on hides and leather will add $110,000,000 annually to the American public's "leather bill," Sentaor Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, declared in the senate today in opening an attack on the schedule. Walsh said the proposed duties would increase the cost of shoes, boots, harness and saddlery articles "for the benefit of a few packers."

WOMAN BADLY BEATEN, SON-IN-LAW MURDERED

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 9.—Lloyd Lundgren, 28, was found slain today in the basement of the Hotel Commodore Annex, a few minutes after his mother-in-law, Mrs. Annie Enger had been brutally beaten there with a bottle. She is in a serious condition. Lundgren's body, covered with rags, was found in a corner of the basement by police when they responded to a call that Mrs. Enger had been beaten unconscious.

CALLAPSE OF INDEMNITY CONFERENCE IS AVERTED

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Threatened collapse of the inter-allied indemnity conference was narrowly averted today when Premier Theunis of Belgium submitted counter proposals to take the place of the German conditions turned in by Premier Poincaire of France on Tuesday. The danger of deadlock was not completely allayed this afternoon. France is understood to be insisting upon the right to separate action against Germany and the French have "sanctions" in mind which include seizure of the German coal fields in the Ruhr basin.

AMUNDSEN ABANDONS PLANS TO DRIFT TO POLE

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 9.—Captain Rouald Amundsen and his crew of far northern adventurers have temporarily abandoned their plans for drifting over the North Pole. Dispatches received here today from Point Barrow, northernmost point in Alaska, indicate the explorer is preparing to return to Seattle and will probably visit New York. Dissension has broken out on Amundsen's ship, the Maud, it developed, when Lieutenant Fullerton, Canadian aviator, understood to be in charge of the proposed airplane trip over the North Pole, reached Nome late yesterday aboard the schooner Sea Wolf from Kotzebu Sound. Lieutenant Fullerton declared he was returning for service with the Canadian air board.

LEADERS SAY THERE WILL BE NO GENERAL STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Definite assurances were given here today by rail union heads that there will not be a formal, general rail strike. With complete failure forecast for all settlement proposals so far advanced, this statement darted out from the constantly darkening industrial sky as the one bright ray of hope against absolute paralysis of the country's railway systems. It came from men gathering here for a parley Friday at which every union worker connected with railroad transportation will pledge financial and moral support to the shopcraft strikers and urge unwavering continuance of the tie up. From unimpeachable sources, it was learned that the ranks of the strikers will be augmented after the Friday meeting but not by formal strike call. One action of the coming conference regarded as a certainty will be the sanctioning of every locomotive engineer and fireman to determine for himself whether railroad equipment entrusted to his care is in fit condition for usage and to quit work if it is not.

FIRST WITNESS IS CALLED IN K. K. K. HEARING

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—The "night of terror" in Inglewood which ended in the killing of Constable M. B. Mosher and the wounding of two others in a revolver battle, was graphically described at the trial of thirty-seven men in Superior Judge Houser's court today by the first witnesses for the prosecution in the Ku Klux Klan trial. Fidel Elduayen, whose home in Inglewood was raided by the Klansmen, was called to the stand after county surveyors introduced maps and diagrams of the Elduayen place and the scene of the shooting. Mary and Bernarda Elduayen, 12 and 15 years of age respectively, were in the court room to be called as witnesses after their father left the stand. The girls were ready to testify that several of the raiders entered their bedroom and that they were compelled to get out of bed and dress while the masked men who were in the house watched them. The two others of the Elduayen family, Mattias, Fidel's brother, and Mrs. Fidel Elduayen, were also ready to testify but it was not expected that they would reach the stand. Frank Woerner, the Inglewood peace officer, who routed the mob and who will be the prosecution's star witness, will not be called until the stories of the Elduayens have been heard, it was announced.

HARDING'S FRIENDS WIN IN PRIMARIES IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9.—President Harding retains the confidence of the voters of his home state, and the organization which has functioned so efficiently in other years is still running smoothly. This is the concensus of opinion in political circles here today, as leaders analyze the returns of yesterday's state-wide primaries, in which Colonel Carmi A. Thompson, of Cleveland, easily distanced a field of eight opponents for the Republican nomination for governor, and Congressman Simeon D. Fess, despite the opposition of labor, walked away with the senatorial nomination. Upon the face of returns from about two-thirds of the nearly 8000 precincts in the state, Thompson's plurality will reach close to 75,000 and his total vote will more than equal that of the two leading opposition candidates—Congressman Charles L. Knight of Akron, who sought to marshal the progressive element in the party, and C. Homer Durand, of Coshocton, who made his race as a proponent of beer and light wines. Senator Atlee Pomerene, fighting the anti-saloon league and a considerable element of union labor, defeated his only primary opponent, John J. Lentz, more than two to one, while A. V. Donahey, of New Philadelphia, who made the race for governor in 1920, easily outdistanced Judge James C. Johnson, favored by former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, and Thomas J. Duffy, a former leader of union labor, for the Democratic nomination for governor. In the congressional races, John C. Cooper of the Youngstown district, was reported to be having a hard race, but all other members of the present delegation, with the exception of Knight and Fess, who did not seek re-nomination, were easy winners. Congressman Theodore Burton, one of the leaders of the house, easily defeated Henry I. Emerson, former congressman, who sought his old seat.

Glendale Realty Dealers Meet At Barbecue Dinner Amid Beauties of Verdugo Woodlands And Discuss Problems, Enjoy Varied Program

PEACE, HAPPINESS HELP IN MAKING SECTION GREAT

Lon J. Haddock Gives Some of Many Reasons People Become Residents

"I believe that man cannot live in this land of perennial sunshine without making it a part of himself.

"I believe that is the one big reason why the whole world today is talking of the southland and this town where we have made our homing place.

"Small wonder that a man who lives here could help but love southern California."

Those were the three thoughts opening an informal speech by Lon J. Haddock of the Haddock-Nibley company, subdividers of Glendale Heights, before the Glendale Realty board meeting last night at Verdugo Woodlands.

It was a talk, straight-from-the shoulder by a former Utah man who has traveled the world over, who has been won by the empire builders here.

Compliments Pioneers

After complimenting the F. P. Newport company for their pioneering work in Verdugo Woodlands, he said:

"In all of the world, where could there be found a place where man has so great opportunities to expand himself, than in the wealthiest county and the fastest-growing city in America today.

"It is a land that is growing because of the variety of resources it has to offer. But about this wonderful growth, why Long Beach, with its 212 per cent growth in ten years has nothing on Glendale, for the latter without the ocean as an attraction shows an increase of 400 per cent in the same period.

"It has been done because it holds the key to the choicest homing country in the world. And the people have just begun to flow in here. The development on every hand just presages what is going to take place. Yes, southern California is the most talked-of place in the world today.

"There were 535 new manufactories located in Los Angeles last year. Men who build plants do not guess. They analyze the un-

Alma Gladys Turner Weds F. M. Leslie

The wedding of Miss Alma Gladys Turner, daughter of Mrs. Ida H. Turner of Hollywood, formerly of Glendale, and Frank M. Leslie of New York, took place at sunset Saturday evening, August 5, 1922, beneath a trellis of climbing pink roses in the gardens of the San Gabriel home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kramer. An informal reception followed. Rev. Moomaw of the Christian church of Alhambra officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white chiffon and silver and a lace veil. Her shower bouquet was of white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her mother, who gave her in marriage, wore a gown of beaded dark blue silk crepe. Mrs. George Lamoreaux, sister of the bride, as the matron of honor, wore a frock of pink organdie and carried pink roses and lilies of the valley. Little Mary Lamoreaux, sister-in-law of the matron of honor, was the flower girl. Ross Leslie was the best man. Miss Helen Sayre of Glendale played the wedding march.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie left on a motor trip to Yosemite and after passing some time there will go to Seattle and Alaska for three months before returning to Los Angeles to make their home. Mrs. Leslie was graduated from Glendale Union High school and has a host of friends in this city.

Library Board to Make Improvements

At the regular business session of the members of the Glendale public library board Monday night authorization was made to Mrs. J. C. Danford, librarian, to make certain necessary improvements in the juvenile room. A new desk is one of the recent acquisitions in that department and it is planned to add a book truck and several other necessities.

Mrs. M. Buckman of the Glendale Foothill Improvement Association was present as a representative of the committee from that organization to bring in ideas regarding the selection of a branch library site in the northwest section.

The names of several applicants for positions on the library staff to fill vacancies were read as follows: Name of Miss Edna Platt presented to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Miss Margaret Pardon; name of Miss Kate Frost of the Fresno library presented as prospective applicant to fill vacancy created by resignation of Miss Alice M. Green. Miss Eva A. Garton was elected to fill the vacancy created by resignation of Miss Dorothy E. Rich.

Boost! Boost! Boost!

By LON J. HADDOCK

Boost, don't knock.
Don't begin to talk
As though in doubt about
The future of your state.
It's great!

Don't sit down, and frown,
And shout about some other
State or town.

Nobody likes the knocker,
The progress blocker,
The chronic trouble-talker
Who just sits back and
Scowls and growls,
And works his hungry jowls
And howls
At the men who—when
There's something to be done,—
Dig in, like sin, with a boost
For everyone.

Gee whiz, what a shame it is,
That in a land like this
Where the heavens stoop to kiss
The labor of man's hand,
Some crank will stand,
And carp, and kick, and
Harp and criticize
And shirk the work that Makes of earth a paradise.

It's fine, to be in line,
It shows that you're of Stock divine!

It pays—always.
So don't knock, boost,
That's the talk.
So just come down from your roost and
Boost, Boost, BOOST!

Barbecue Sidelights

People are curious. So are animals.

Animals are curious about people.

And people are curious about animals.

That's a fact, so when the realty board dinner party started to discuss the funny looking food on their plates at the Spanish dinner in Verdugo Woodlands last evening several deeply suspected the fried article with a tail to it.

"Those are gophers," said W. L. Twining, the genial host, "there goes one now," and he pointed at a little white cat.

Of course, people knew better and found the food to be delicious stuffed Spanish peppers.

As the crowd went to the pavilion for the speechmaking, the cat went scampering away.

At the close of the program, however, the cat was back. This time it was another cat, a pole cat, and evidently it didn't like the way people forgot the words to "Auld Lang Syne."

It gave the crowd something more pungent to remember.

Lon J. Haddock is quite a story teller. He was introduced as a nationally famous educator, which he is, and, being in the real estate business, he knows real estate men appreciate a good story. Here is what he told:

Little Willie returned from school and reported to his father that he had been whipped.

"Why, you ought to be ashamed of yourself," said papa.

"Yes, but it's partly your fault," countered Willie. "I asked you last night how much a million dollars is—and you said 'a heluva lot.' I found out from teacher that it's the wrong answer."

L. H. Myers also contributed a yarn that spins well. Seems that a special revenue officer was sent from Washington to bring back a Kentucky moonshiner dead or alive. Six agents who had preceded him had passed away suddenly.

Arriving at the mountaineer's cabin he offered the son of the outlaw a tip to take him to the still where his father was working.

"I'll give you a quarter when we return," said the revenue man.

"You give it to me now," said the boy. "You'll never return."

Spencer Robinson, Glendale's singing mayor, whose voice wafted around the Woodlands considerable last night, says it was only a rehearsal for the state stumping trip he will make with Mattison B. Jones, Democratic candidate for governor.

Mrs. Robinson will go along, playing one of Bill Horn's handy organs, borrowed from some Sunday school.

Missionaries Given Surprise As Farewell

Rev. William E. Schubert, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Schubert of 322 West Wilson avenue, and wife, were pleasantly surprised last night by a party of friends at the Southern Pacific depot in Los Angeles as they were leaving for San Francisco. Rev. and Mrs. Schubert will sail tomorrow from the latter city for Nanking, China, where they started their life's work as missionaries. They are under the parent board of the Methodist church.

The farewell party at the station had been planned by a group of friends and college chums. Shortly before boarding the train Rev. and Mrs. Schubert were surrounded by their friends and presented with a beautiful oriental steamer robe.

HEAR BRIEF BITS OF EARLY LIFE IN SOUTHLAND

L. H. Myers Tells of Spanish Grant; Other Speakers Make Predictions

"In all of Southern California there are only two north and south canyons with valleys at each end. These are Laurel of Hollywood and Verdugo of Glendale."

This was he revelation made last night at the Glendale Realty board's barbecue dinner meeting at the California pavalion in Verdugo Woodlands. L. H. Myers, self-confessed "incorrigible optimist," was doing the speaking for the F. P. Newport company, who played hosts to the other local dealers, several city officials, the Chamber of Commerce secretaries and several newspapermen.

Mr. Myers was introduced by W. L. Twining, general manager of the Newport company, following the singing of America, led by Mayor Spencer Robinson, with Mrs. Robinson playing the organ.

The topic of his talk was "A Comparison of the Verdugo of Yesterday and Today."

Great Transformation

"We are here to discuss problems common to us," said Mr. Myers in opening, and he quoted from James Russell Lowell the oft-repeated thought: "New times demand new methods and new men; the world moves on apace. . . ."

"I was at the Grapevine Inn the other evening and saw Logena Verdugo, who is now 117 years of age, and there were four generations gathered about her. It recalled to mind that under the old Spanish land grants 300,000 acres of Southern California had been given Jose Verdugo. When he died the eldest son, Theodora, had his choice of the property, and he selected 27,000 acres comprising what we know as Hollywood, Glendale, Verdugo Woodlands, La Crescenta, La Canada and part of Eagle Rock.

"Out of that great expanse of land where did he plant his roof

Veterans' Daughters Conduct Initiation

Mrs. Clara Hamilton and Miss Essie Wilson were initiated into Mary Jane Gillette Tent No. 18, Daughters of Veterans, with impressive ceremonies at the meeting of that organization last night at American Legion hall. Applications for membership from other candidates were also received and acted upon.

Final arrangements were announced for the complimentary chicken dinner to be given for the members of N. P. Banks Post, G. A. R. This dinner will be served under a large pepper tree at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph V. Griffin, 205 West Acacia street, Friday, August, 11, at noon.

Mrs. Haak of Denver, Colorado, a visiting daughter, gave a talk on the activities and progress of the tent in Denver. The usual routine of business was carried out and letters read from headquarters. In spite of the warm weather there was a good attendance of members present.

Final Coal Reserves Now Being Moved

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 9. — The last reserves of anthracite coal are being moved from this section to New York and other points. Berstler in response to government inquiries as to the available supply at present.

MIGHTY STORM AT SEA FEATURE OF FILM STORY

Ocean Winds Do Their Part In Making This Picture Pleasing Success

When "Hurricane's Gal," Dorothy Phillips' latest starring vehicle, is shown at the T. D. and L. theatre, the audiences see one of the most imposing sights ever filmed. It is a picture of a mighty storm on the open seas, which takes place at night and which was actually filmed after sundown on the ship employed by Director Allen Holubar for this production. No mechanism was needed to roll the ship—old man Neptune attended to this feature with avidity.

The gallons of water which poured over the ship, and over Miss Phillips herself—for she is one star who shirks no scene, no matter how dangerous—were contributed principally by the ocean winds. To make assurance doubly sure, however, Director Holubar had a fleet of six tank ships towed out with the schooner used in "Hurricane's Gal." Flumes running from the topmost point of the tank ships were used to deluge the ships and actors with water from above as well as that which came over the sides.

PICTURE SNAPPED FROM SKY SHOWS GRASS BLADES

Aerial Photograph on Display at Eagle Rock Lumber Company Office

An aerial photograph of part of Eagle Rock's business section, and showing the entire plant of the Eagle Rock Lumber Company, is now occupying a prominent place in the office of that company at 401 South Central avenue.

The picture was taken at several hundred feet elevation by J. M. Cross, aerial photographer who lives on York boulevard just south of Eagle Rock, and is a friend and customer of Emil Swanson, proprietor of the Eagle Rock Lumber Company.

The clearness of the picture is remarkable, for one can almost see the blades of grass in the lawns. Mr. Swanson is quite proud of it, showing, as it does, all the buildings and yards of the Eagle Rock Lumber company's large plant.

Peggy Hamilton Now Resident of Glendale

Peggy Hamilton, who is recognized by many as the greatest designer of women's gowns in the west, is among Glendale's newest residents, she having recently leased a beautiful home at Verdugo Woodlands. Miss Hamilton, whose smart creations have delighted the hearts of thousands of women in southern California during the past few years, states that "Glendale is just wonderful," and "I don't know why I haven't known about this before." She is already talking of buying a home here at the expiration of her present lease.

Miss Hamilton, who has staged many successful fashion shows and exhibits in Los Angeles and surrounding cities within the past eighteen months, has announced that there is a possibility of a similar event being arranged for Glendale in the near future.

WILLIAM S. HART, MOVIE STAR, TO FACE DIVORCE

Wife Goes to Mother and Legal Papers Are Being Prepared, Report

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9.—William S. Hart, known to movie fans as "Big Bill," hero of many "wild west" screen pictures, and his wife, formerly Miss Winifred Westover, have separated and divorce proceedings are in contemplation on the part of the wife, it became known today.

The separation, it was learned, took place about three months ago when Mrs. Hart left the Hart home in Hollywood and moved to Santa Monica, where she is living with her mother, Mrs. Clyde Westover, while awaiting the coming of a child that is expected in November.

The famous film star, it was authoritatively stated, had submitted to his wife and her attorney a property settlement, which is now under consideration by them.

The settlement, it was declared, makes provision not only for Mrs. Hart but for their unborn child.

Hart's Sister Blamed

Divorce papers are being prepared by Mrs. Hart's attorney, and, it was said, may be filed in two or three weeks. In the event they are not filed, it was said, Mrs. Hart may bring an action against Hart's sister, Mary, for alienation of affections of "Big Bill."

Mary Hart is in New York at present on business, the nature of which was not disclosed.

In case, as is indicated, divorce proceedings are brought by Mrs. Hart extreme cruelty will be charged, according to information obtainable today.

Will Hays, "czar of the movies," has been acting as an intermediary, and, while in Los Angeles recently, attempted, it is said, to bring about a reconciliation. Failing in that, he turned his efforts to trying to effect an amicable agreement of separation, and is still working along that line, with the result doubtful.

R. W. Miles Returns From Mountain Trip

R. W. Miles, formerly a partner in the Army & Navy store here, has returned to his Glendale home after a fortnight's rest at Arrowhead lake. While there he was in fear he would have to fight fire, but the flames failed to reach the resort a week ago.

BUSINESS CLUB TO HAVE CONCESSION AT CITY PARK

Make Plans to Take Candy Booth; Favor Depot Near Milford Street

At the regular meeting last night of the Business and Professional Women's club at its new quarters, 126 South Maryland avenue, plans were made for the members of that organization to take charge of a candy concession at the municipal picnic to be held at the opening of the new city park in Verdugo Woodlands on August 16. This will be in charge of the ways and means committee. At this concession there will be on sale candies, popcorn, peanuts and chewing gum.

George U. Moyse, principal of the high school, and H. W. Yarick, member of the high school board, were present, and spoke in regard to the additional bond issue for the new high school plant, which is to be presented to the voters in the near future, and asked the members of the club to be present at a mass meeting to be held at the high school Thursday night.

E. D. Yard was also a speaker for the evening, giving an explanation regarding the re-establishment of a Southern Pacific depot on San Fernando Road near Milford street. The club voted to endorse the petition to have a depot at this location.

Club Is Growing

Dr. Laura Brown, president of the business women's club, announced that at the present time the club has over 125 members in good standing. The names of eleven applicants were received and accepted. It is planned to have an informal reception for the new members at the regular monthly picnic of the club, to be held at Verdugo Woodlands, August 22, and which will be the last picnic of the season. Miss Gertrude Gibbs, chairman of the program committee, announced that Mrs. Robert Burdett would be the speaker for the program to follow the picnic.

A communication was read from Mrs. Peggy Warner, vice-president of the club, inviting the members to a party to be given at her apartment, 106 East Wilson avenue, by herself and Mrs. A. Walton the last Tuesday night of the month, and a motion carried to accept the invitation. Dr. Maybelle Tinkler of 107½ South Brand boulevard will be hostess at a meeting of the club at her apartment in September. It is planned that the Glendale Business and Professional Women's club will entertain the county federation the fourth Wednesday in October.

Discuss Club Affairs

The resignation of Mrs. Margaret Biggs as occupational chairman was accepted with regrets. Mrs. George U. Moyse was elected to succeed her as chairman of that committee. Dr. Caroline Paine-Jackman, chairman of the house committee, expressed appreciation of the work done by Miss Stevens, housekeeper for the club, in moving the quarters from the Coker & Taylor building to its present location at 126 South Maryland avenue, where they have a seven-room house. She stated that two of the rooms have been rented to members of the club. One of these rooms is being completely furnished through the courtesy of Mrs. M. P. Moberly. Dr. Jackman suggested that the privilege cards for members using the club rooms be discontinued and that non-club members pay 50 cents for their privilege cards.

A suggestion was made that a library shower be combined with the next meeting of the club in order to secure books for the shelves of the new club rooms. Other donations of furniture, including a single bed, box couch, dresser, mirror, dishes, rugs, easy chairs, gas heating stoves, etc., will also be welcomed.

The remainder of the meeting was taken up with reports of committee chairman and routine business.

Sentence Sixteen to Death for Conspiracy

MOSCOW, Aug. 9.—Sixteen social revolutionaries, charged with conspiring against the soviet government and the lives of soviet officials, were sentenced to death today.

It is understood that the executive committee of the soviet will commute the death sentence to terms of imprisonment. Such action has been advised in order to gain outside support for the Lenine administration.

NEW PAVED VALLEY DRIVE IS READY FOR PUBLIC

Eagle Rock Streets Repaired by Superintendent C. S. Bramble's Crews

The paving of Valley drive is practically completed and will be entirely opened to traffic the latter part of this week, according to Claude S. Bramble, Eagle Rock street superintendent.

Part of Mr. Bramble's forces have been at work on the paving of the drive for several weeks. For a time work was delayed on account of the breaking down of a rock crushing plant in Lamanda park, from which some of the material for the street was secured. However, a new source of supply was obtained and now the entire street is paved with rock and oil with the exception of the crossings.

About three days will be required, states Mr. Bramble, to finish the intersections, and then the complete drive will be opened for its entire length.

Work On Colorado

The section of the south half of Colorado boulevard between Highland and Satsuma avenues which was plowed up a week ago Monday, has been worked over, allowed to dry out, and is now ready for more rock and oil, states Mr. Bramble. The base has been rolled and made solid, and additional rock is to be applied at once. On Friday the section will be oiled, and it will be open for traffic over the week-end, it is expected.

The next section, from Satsuma to Townsend avenue, was plowed up yesterday by the street force. The base rock will be allowed to dry, and then will be put back and rolled down, so that a new surface of rock and oil may be applied.

Fixes Worst First

Two other sections of the south side of Colorado boulevard between Central and Townsend avenues are yet to be resurfaced. Mr. Bramble planned to work over the street in four sections at different times, so that the entire length between Central and Townsend avenues would not be closed at one time, and began at the worst part first.

It is expected that the entire project will be finished within a little over a month from now.

3 PERMITS ISSUED FOR FINE HOMES IN EAGLE ROCK

Glendale Builders Contract Construction of Houses for Outside Parties

Building permits issued yesterday at the Eagle Rock City Hall took a slight jump over the valuations of permits for the average past few days. Only three permits were issued, but the total valuation of the three was $11,650.

Fred F. Peterson on 216 Riverdale drive, Glendale, is to build a six room house and a garage for A. R. Fisher of San Fernando. The dwelling house and garage are to be erected on property at 1216 Broadway, Eagle Rock. The approximate cost of the project is $4,000.

A six room residence is to be built for H. Baumgarten of 219 North Kenilworth avenue, Eagle Rock. B. W. Sherwood is to be th ebuilder. The site for the house, and also a garage, is at 147 North Highland avenue. Estimates place the cost of the buildings at about $4,300.

H. D. Coley, of 1059 North Western avenue, Los Angeles, is to build in Eagle Rock. C. C. Rittenhouse, Jr., of Glendale, has contracted with him to erect a five room dwelling house and garage at 331 North Delaware street. Mr. Coley's plans as to the use or disposal of the home have not been announced. The cost of the project is about $3,350.

The Reason
—Most bakers' bread and pastry does NOT taste like home-made products—is because most bakers use cheaper materials.
—It is impossible to use cheap compound and shortening—even lard—and secure the same excellence as if butter were used in a cake.
—It is just as impossible to use cheap flour and powdered milk and get as good bread as if high grade flour and fresh, sweet milk were used.
That's Why Our Whole Milk Bread
—made from quality flour, and Glendale Creamery fresh milk, is making such a hit with Glendale people—just as our Cakes, Rolls, and other products are, with people who appreciate real quality at the same prices as they have been paying.

GRAPES
Harvest Your Money in BUNCHES
The Fontana Farms Company is not a New Company. It has been in business for 17 years and bears the highest financial reputation.
The "Fontana" Company has PIONEERED for you and does not ask you to risk a dollar.
The sale of our ALREADY highly improved GRAPE land is not conditioned upon promises but upon ACTUAL ACCOMPLISHMENTS—of deeds already performed.
In the largest proven Grape District in Southern California, fifty miles' ride from Los Angeles, the Fontana Farms Company has already planted the following varieties of grapes and is prepared to sell these Vineyards to suit the purchaser's choice and at a price less than most unimproved land is selling for in California. The varieties PLANTED and being IRRIGATED NOW—TODAY—by one of the finest water systems in the entire country, are:
Alicante Bouschet—Zinfandel—Mission—Tereusa—Muscat—Sultana and Cornichon. All you have to do is select the acreage of your choice—it is THERE—PLANTED and WATERED—NOW.
The "Fontana" Company has planted 2,500 ACRES TO GRAPES. This acreage is being rapidly disposed of but the remaining portion is being offered to purchasers in tracts of from 5 acres to 500 acres.
And we will just let YOU pass judgment on these terms: $100.00 per acre cash, $25.00 per acre each year for three years, $100.00 per acre the 4th year and $175.00 per acre the 5th year.
In considering these terms REMEMBER that your vineyard should produce 4 to 8 tons per acre and the price is now $90.00 to $125.00 per ton. Figure the increase in your land value if you want to because you probably wouldn't sell your vineyard in five years for less than $1,500 per acre.
BUT the Fontana Farms Company will care for your vineyard FREE for 3 years and give you a share of water stock with each acre worth $150.00 per share.

COMMENT THAT'S ALL

Loyalty to Your Town
Tales of Secret Service
People Do Not Forget
Have You Taken Dip?

By Gil A. Cowan

LOYALTY! You know what that means!

Loyalty to one's own community and its institutions are admirable.

It is the same spirit which takes men, yes, even boys, out to fight a nation's battles.

And when it comes to downright loyalty to Glendale, without flag waving, or fireworks, The Evening News claims your support.

It is often mentioned by newcomers that they were attracted to this city by the boosting done in the columns of this newspaper. They read, they believed and they found the truth to be as stated, if not a little underestimated

So, when we hear others boasting their part in the building of the city, is it any wonder that the publisher of this paper can look back on the war days when The Evening News was the sole and only piece of literature sent forth to advertise Glendale?

When there was no money for anything but war, it seemed, hundreds of inquiries were addressed to the Glendale Chamber of Commerce — an organization which was practically non-existent. The postoffice delivered these communications to The News.

Some of them were answered in personal letters; to others a copy of the paper was mailed; and information was daily passed over the counter to newcomers until The Glendale Evening News became an institution of service. It was just existing on the meagre rations permitted a sore-pressed civil population. Business could not be considered "booming." No, indeed!

AND NO ONE KNOWS BETTER THAN THOSE EMPLOYES OF THIS PAPER AT THAT TIME WHAT IT DID TO KEEP UP THE WORK OF BOOSTING GLENDALE.

In the current issue of McClure's magazine there appears a story of the army secret service in France, the same branch in which this writer served at Washington, D. C.

Two real estate men of prominence in the Southland were in that same section and some day the time may be ripe to tell some of the interesting, humorous and thrilling experiences enjoyed (?) by the small handful of picked men who are due no congressional medals of honor, for theirs was a life of adventure and excitement not to be compared with the average soldier and therefore exempt of any honor.

Yet it is a fact, folks, the members of the army secret service were listed as practically the only combatant troops this side of the pond. They fought the fight with more fortitude than many a fellow sent overseas ashiver lest his last day had come.

Imagine, if you can, youthful huskies, many of them college and police athletes, walking the streets in civilian clothes, the scorn of noble women, the patriotic bond solicitors and the talk of the neighbors.

The secret service members of Uncle Sam's army and navy had to endure in silence, during days of tireless work and nights of watchful waiting, all of this caprice, only to disappear at the end of the war, a little band of men claiming no divisional reunions and scattered far and wide across the country.

People do not forget, although at times popularity seems shortlived. To this day we see cartoons recalling the personality and power of Theodore Roosevelt.

In last Sunday's Times there was a picture of Teddy, Jr., marching and smiling that T. R. smile in the Elks' parade at Atlantic City. It was captioned, "A Chip Off the Old Block." That is rather belated recognition from the Times, but in years to come we expect to see something nice said about Hiram Johnson, senior senator from California.

Every vindictive word uttered now—now that he has the overwhelming assurance of re-election—only strengthens his staunch supporters to greater activity to roll the majority more decidedly in the Senator's favor.

All of this smoke screen which is being belched forth from the purchased press in this state today makes any thinking man or woman realize the necessity for returning a fearless fighter for America's rights to the front ranks at the national capital.

Now they are going to have a nurse at the municipal swimming pool. Wonder if she will play with the baby while mamma and papa take a plunge?

If you haven't visited the newest resort, you ought to go out to the Patterson avenue park and take a good look at Glendale's mermaids and mermen, as the sporting writers say.

For swimming is sure some sport—whether you can swim or not. And you can adopt such subtle sunburns that the hives will be forgotten.

Waltz Is Replacing Jazz In Gay Paree

PARIS—It's "Waltz Me Around Again, Willie" in the Paris ballrooms today. Jazz is dying and, like the old-fashioned gowns, old-fashioned dances are coming to the front and replacing the fox-trot and the shimmy. On July 14 all the little street bands and orchestras unearthed the once-popular airs of the Edwardian era and the little midinettes and their cavaliers spend the night doing the simple walses, lancers and old-time quadrilles.

MYSTERY, COMEDY AND BIG CLIMAX MAKE PICTURE

Rather Unusual Film Is Now Being Offered by Company Of High Ideals

When Harlan Carr inherited his Uncle Ebenezer's "Jack o'Lantern" house, and took his bride there to live, he little realized that he would soon be the unwilling host of a score of hungry relatives. But in less than a week they were there, bag and baggage and a few trunks in addition. And then things began to happen. There were strange sounds at night.

A black cat made the house his headquarters, and a shadowy figure floated through the halls at night. There is mystery in this story and a climax that will fairly make your hair stand on end, and through it all there is a vein of comedy that will make your sides ache from laughter. The name of the picture is "At the Sign of the Jack o'Lantern." It is coming to the Glendale Theatre today for an engagement of two days.

It is a Myrtle Reed story produced by Renco, a film concern which has adopted the highest ideals to be found in the industry today, it is declared.

Sport High Spots

This year's annual meeting of the Pacific Coast conference, which is scheduled to take place this week at Berkeley, is expected by many to be the most interesting, exciting, hectic, etc., in the history of the organization—at least when the New Year's game proposition is brought before the body. For the past two years the great East vs. West classic which was inaugurated back in 1916 by the Pasadena Tournament of Roses athletic commission, has been growing in disfavor among the northern colleges and universities and it is now time for the proposition to be decided upon once and for all. The Crown City organization, which has done more than any other body in the cementing of athletic relations of the east and west during the past decade, will be represented at the conference gathering by Les Henry and W. F. Creller. Delegates from the following schools will be on hand for the confab: University of Southern California, University of California, Stanford university, University of Oregon, Oregon Agricultural college, University of Washington, Washing State college and the University of Idaho.

The first appearance in a wrestling ring of Bull Montana, the handsome Italian who receives more advertising than any other motion picture actor in the country, since his return from his recent visit to his native country, will take place on Friday night, August 18 at Covina. On that date the Covina post of the American Legion will stage a wrestling and boxing show with the headliner a novel grappling bout between Montana and Eddie O'Connell, referee of the recent Miller-Meyers battle. The terms of the battle state that Montana must throw his opponent twice within sixty minutes' time in order to win the affair. Walter Miller, star L. A. A. C. middleweight, will referee.

Among the latest proposed trades announced in the Coast league is the one in which Jack Knight, Oakland infielder and star batsman for the past several season, will become the property of the Vernon Tigers for a number of players whose names have not yet been mentioned. Knight, who is equally at home at any position in the inner defense, would add twenty per cent both to the defensive and to the offensive strength of Ed Maier's Bengals, as his type of player is exactly the kind needed by the Seals' most dangerous rivals.

Although Elmer Ponder, the Angels' hurling ace who has been laid up with a dislocated shoulder for the past several weeks, is technically the leader of the Coast league pitching averages the legitimate pace-making position goes to Jim Scott, veteran San Francisco heaver who seems to improve with age. "Death Valley," with eighteen victories and five reversals, has a percentage of .782. Ponder's mark is still at .833, he having won eleven and lost two contests prior to his accident in Salt Lake. Following is a partial list of the remaining topnotchers in the heaving department: Mitchell, Seals, fourteen and five, .736; May, Tigers, nineteen and seven, .731; Dumovich, Angeles, twelve and six, .667; Arlett, Oaks, nineteen and ten, .656; James, Tigers, thirteen and seven, .650.

Iowa Has Record for Ownership of Bulls

WASHINGTON — Franklin county, Idaho, now has more bulls owner co-operatively than any other county in the western states, according to the agricultural department.

A co-operative bull association has just been formed there and ten pure bred Holstein bulls were brought in for use in eighty-seven herds. The introduction of this new blood, agricultural department experts said, will make this county a real dairy county in a few years.

Largest Flag Hangs In Post Department

WASHINGTON — One of the largest American flags in continuous use hangs in the court of the Postoffice Department building here.

Suspended from the level of the eighth floor, the flag reaches down to the third and would make a rather hefty load for one to carry around, since it weighs ninety pounds.

The banner, according to accurate measurements, has a fly of 70 feet 4 inches, hoist 37 feet, field 20x28 feet. It is literally as big as a house, according to department officials, who assert that a comfortable six-room bungalow could be built on the space the flag would cover.

Take good counsel and keep it.

These Waste Baskets Are Most Expensive

The most expensive waste baskets in Glendale were located today at 143 South Brand boulevard in front of the store of the Automobile Tire company.

These are tires stacked upon a movable platform and rolled to the sidewalk as an advertisement of the stock within the store. One stack contains twelve tires each worth $15.50 apiece—so that altogether they are worth $186 and the other stack contains fourteen tires at $11.50 apiece so that the stack is worth $161.

According to C. H. Montgomery, proprietor of the establishment, passers-by can't resist the temptation to toss paper and scraps in these rubber receptacles. He admits that he had the dickens of a time getting it out, too.

New Record Set for Handling Passengers

BOSTON—A new record has been made by the Commonwealth Pier of Boston for the handling of passengers and merchandise. According to experts, no pier in the world has ever handled such an enormous amount of cargo.

Not only three competing California lines use the pier, but other vessels from all parts of the world are taken care of. From July 1 until July 20 more than 50,000 tons of New England merchandise has passed over the pier. As yet no vessel has turned away for want of a berth. In addition to this, the motor registry department takes care of hundreds of automobiles in a day at its office on the pier without the slightest congestion.

Chris J. Orff Will Open Barber Shop

Chris J. Orff of 465 West Milford street, who has been engaged in the barber business in Glendale for the past eleven years, has announced the opening of a first-class, up-to-date shop in the new Orff building on San Fernando Road near Brand boulevard.

This business block, which comprises three stores and apartments above, has added materially to the stabilizing of realty values in that rapidly-forming business section of Glendale. The finishing work on the second floor will be completed in about a week. The building is of gold ruffled brick with Batchelder tile under the plate-glass windwos, and the apartments are most complete, with tiled sinks, bathrooms, automatic water heaters, etc.

London Drunkards Show Huge Increase

LONDON.—Drunkenness is on the increase in London, since the hours for the sale of alcohol were extended last September, according to the Scotland Yard report.

In this city of 7,000,000 people the weekly number of convictions for drunkenness averages 711, as against 428 before the increased hours.

Easter week in 1920 was the banner week for the drinkers, however, the report shows, for during that week there were 7,171 convictions for drunkenness, a record for London.

During 1921 there were 27,410 people convicted of drunkenness, of whom 5,494 were women. This total is 2,546 less than in 1920.

All happiness is in the mind.

CHAPTER III

Sunshine and Shadow

When Merriton shaved himself next morning he laughed at the reflection that the mirror cast back at him. For he looked for all the world as though he had been up all night and his knee was painful and rather stiff, as though he had strained some ligament in it.

"Beastly place is beginning to make its mark on me already!" he said, as he lathered his chin. "My eyes look as though they had been stuck in with a burnt cork, and——the devil take my shaky hand! And that railroad business yesterday helps it along. A nice state of affairs for a chap of my age, I must say! Scared as a kid at an old wives' story. Borkins is a fool, and I'm an idiot. . . . Damn! there's a bit off my chin for a start. I hope to goodness no one takes it into their heads to pay me a visit today."

His hopes, however, in this direction were not to be realized, for as the afternoon wore itself slowly away in a ramble round the old place, and through the stables —which in their day had been famous—the big, harsh-throated door-bell rang, and Merriton, in the very act of telling Borkins that he was officially "not in," happened to catch a glimpse of something light and fluffy thru the stained glass of the door, and suddenly kept his counsel.

A few seconds later Borkins ushered in two visitors. Merriton, prepared by the convenient glass for the appearance of one was nevertheless not unpleased to see the other. For the names that Borkins rolled off his tongue with much relish were those of "Miss Brellier and Mr. Brellier, sir."

His lady of the thrice blessed wreck! His lady of the dainty accent and glorious eyes.

His face glowed suddenly and he crossed the big room in a couple of strides and in the next second was holding Antoinette's hand rather longer than was necessary, and was looking down into the rougish greeny-gray eyes that had captivated him only yesterday, when for one terrible, glorious moment he had held her in his arms, while the railroad coach dissolved around them.

"Are you fit to be about?" he said, his voice ringing with the evident pleasure that he felt at this meeting with her, and his eyes wandering to where a strip of pink court plaster upon her forehead showed faintly through the screen of hair that covered it. Then he dropped her hand and turned toward the man who stood a pace or two behind her tiny figure, looking at him with the bluest, youngest eyes he had ever looked into.

"Mr. Brellier, is it not? Very good of you, sir, to come across in this neighbourly fashion. Won't you sit down?"

"Yes," said Antoinette, gaily. I brought him right over by telling him of our adventure."

The man was tall and heavily built, with a wealth of black hair thickly streaked with gray, and a trim, well-kept "imperial" which gave him the foreign air that his name carried out so well. His morning suit was extremely well cut, and his whole bearing that of the well-to-do man about town. Merriton registered all this in his mind's eye, and was secretly very glad of it. They were two thoroughbreds—that was easy to see.

And as for Antoinette! Well, he could barely keep his eyes from her. She was lovelier than ever, and clad this afternoon in all the fluffy femininity that every man loves. Anything more intoxicatingly delicious Merriton had never seen outside of his own dreams.

"It was certainly ripping of you both to come," he said nervously, feeling all hands and feet. "Never saw such a lonely spot in all my life, by George, as this house! It fairly gives you the creeps!"

"Indeed?" Brellier laughed in a deep, full-throated voice. "For my part the loneliness is what so much appeals to me. When one has spent a busy life traveling to and fro over the world, m'sieur, one can but appreciate the peaceful backwaters which are so often to be found in this very dear, very delightful England of yours. But that is not the mission upon which I come. I have to thank you, sir, for the great kindness and consideration you displayed to my niece yesterday."

His English was excellent, and he spoke with the clipped, careful accent of the foreigner, which Merriton found fascinating. He had already succumbed to something of the same thing in Antoinette. He was beginning to enjoy himself very much indeed.

"There was no need for thanks —none at all. . . What is your opinion of the Towers, Miss Brellier?" he asked suddenly, leaning forward toward her, anxious to change the conversation.

She shrugged her shoulders.

"That is hardly a fair question to ask!" she responded, "when I have been in it but a matter of five minutes or more. But everything to me is enchanting! The architecture, the furnishings, the very atmosphere—"

"Brrh! If you could have been here last night!" He gave a mock shudder and broke it with a laugh. "Why, a truly haunted house wasn't a patch on it! If this place hasn't got a ghost, well then I'll eat my hat! I could fairly hear 'em, dozens and dozens of them, clinking and clanking all over the place. And if you could see my room! I sleep in a four-poster as big as a suburban villa, and every now and again the furniture gives a comfy little crack or two, like someone practicing with a pistol, just to remind me that my great-great-great- grandmother's ghost is sitting in the wardrobe and watching over me with true great-etc.-grandmotherly conscientiousness. . . I say, do you ride? There ought to be some rippin' rides round here, if my memory doesn't fail me."

She nodded, and the conversation took a turn that Sir Nigel found more than pleasant, and the time passed most agreeably.

Merriton, only anxious to entertain his guests, suddenly exploded the bomb which shattered that afternoon's enjoyment for all three of them.

"By the way," he remarked, "last night, while I was lying awake I saw a lot of funny flames dancing up and down upon the horizon. Seemed as though they lay in the marshes between your place and mine, Mr. Brellier. Borkins pulled a long story about 'em with all the usual trimmin's. Said they were supernatural and all that. Ever seen 'em yourself? I must say they gave me a bit of a turn. I'm not keen on spirits—except in bottle form (which by the way is a rotten bad pun, Miss Brellier,) but in India one gets chockful of that sort of thing, and there never seems to be any rational explanation. It leaves you feeling funny. What's your opinion of 'em? For seen 'em you must have done, as they seem to be the talk of the whole village from what Borkins says."

Antoinette's spoon tinkled in the saucer of the teacup she was holding and her face went white. Brellier shifted his eyes. A sort of tension had settled suddenly over the pleasant room.

"I—well, to tell you the truth, I can't explain 'em myself!" Brellied said at last, clearing his throat with signs of genuine nervousness. "They seem to be inexplicable. I have seen them—yes, many many times. And so has 'Toinette, but the stories afloat about them are rather—unpleasant, and like a wise man I have kept myself free of investigation. I do hope you'll do the same, Sir Nigel One never knows, and although one cannot always believe the silly things which the villagers prattle about, it is as well to be on the safe side. As you say, these things sometimes lack a rational explanation. I should be sorry to think you were likely to run into any unnecessary danger." He bent his head and Merriton could see that his fingers twitched.

"Borkins actually told me stories of people who had disappeared in a mysterious manner and were never found again," he remarked casually.

Brellier shrugged his shoulders. He spread out his hands.

"Among the uneducated—what would you? But it is so, even since I myself have been in residence at Withersby Hall—something like three and a half years —there have been several mysterious disappearances, Sir Nigel, and all directly traceable to a foolhardy desire to investigate these phenomena. For myself, I leave well enough alone. I trust you are going to do likewise."

His eyes searched Merriton's face anxiously. There was a worried furrow between his brows..

Merriton laughed, and at the sound, 'Toinette, who had sat perfectly still during the discussion of the mystery, gave a little cry of alarm and covered her ears with her hands.

"I beg of you," she broke out excitedly, "please, please do not talk about it! The whole affair frightens me! Uncle will laugh I know, but—I am terrified of those little flames, Sir Nigel, more terrified than I can say! If you speak of them any more, I must go—really! Please, please don't dream of trying to find out what they are, Sir Nigel! It—it would upset me very much indeed if you attempted so foolish a thing!"

Merriton's first sensation at hearing this was pleasure that he was capable of upsetting her over his own personal welfare Then the something sinister about the whole story, which seemed to affect every one with whom he came into touch, swept over him. A number of otherwise rational human beings scared out of their wits over some mysterious flames on the edge of the Fens at night time, seemed, in the face of this glorious summer's afternoon, to be little short of ridiculous. He tried to throw the idea off but could not. 'Toinette's pale face kept coming before him; the sudden dropping of her spoon struck an unpleasant chord in his memory. Brellier's attitude merely added fuel to the fire and soon they rose to go, Merriton following them to the door.

"Don't forget, then, Miss Brellier, that you are booked to me for a ride on Thursday," he said, laughingly.

She nodded to him and gave his hand a little squeeze at parting.

"I shall not forget, Sir Nigel. But— you will promise me," her voice dropped a tone or two, "you wil l promise me that you will not try and find out what those—those flames are, won't you? I could not sleep if you did." And they were gone.

Merriton stood awhile in silence, his brows puckered and his mouth stern. First Borkins, and then Brellier, and now—her! All of them begging him almost upon their knees to forego a perfectly harmless little quest of discovery. There seemed to his mind something almost fishy about it all. What then were these "Frozen Flames?" What secret did they hide? And what malignant power dwelt behind the screen of their mystery?

POWERFUL TUBE AND INVENTOR

—Copyright Underwood & Underwood.

Dr. Irving Langmuir is shown here inspecting one of his new 20 kilowatt radio tubes, the most powerful ever made. This is the tube Marconi predicts will revolutionize radio by replacing the gigantic alternators now used for transoceanic communication. In his right hand Dr. Langmuir is holding one of the familiar 201 radio tubes so widely used by amateurs with receiving sets.

COMBINATION DETECTOR AND AMPLIFIER BATTERY

New ideas in B batteries are being rapidly consummated and the finished product is making its appearance on the market. One very practical and useful type is here shown. Overall dimensions are 9 inches long by 4½ inches high. Serves as a combination detector and amplifier battery. The novel feature is that the electrolyte is a semi-solid. The battery is rechargeable. Case is made of the new fiber Rub-Tex and is warranted not to crack, spill or leak. Active material is put in the form of the pasted type plate idea. Battery consists of twenty-four cells individually tapped, permitting the use of any voltage from two to fifty volts in steps of two volts each. The manufacturer claims an absolutely noiseless circuit, which is particularly attractive in the use of tubes. Can be recharged at any battery service station or on any type of vibrator rectifying system by following instructions which come with the battery. Contacts between the cells are easily accessible. Case comes highly polished and presents a very neat appearing battery.

COMBINING RADIO FREQUENCY AMPLIFICATION WITH THE REGENERATIVE CIRCUIT

Although somewhat more difficult to operate than straight cascade radio frequency amplification, a regenerative circuit may be combined to produce radio frequency amplification by that method also. A schematic circuit is shown in the diagram and is by no means new.

The coupling transformer is shown as having an iron core as such transformers are somewhat better adapted for amplifying a number of different radio frequencies, although even in this case the band is rather limited. The variometer in the grid circuit of the first or amplifier tube serves to tune that circuit to resonance with the incoming signal frequency. The capacity between the grid and filament within the tube serves to complete the circuit for high frequency oscillations so that it is only necessary to vary the inductance of the variometer The coupling coil may have fixed inductance, and in fact may be the rotor of a vario coupler if desired. The variometer of the detector plate circuit functions as customarily in such a regenerative circuit and may be a duplicate of the grid variometer providing that the coupling coil in the grid circuit of the first tube has sufficient inductance.

Although not shown in the diagram, the primary of an audio frequency transformer may be connected in the plate circuit of the detector tube and cascade audio frequency amplification used to bring the strength of the signal up sufficiently to secure a loud response in the head telephones. No modification is necessary in the customary circuit for audio frequency amplificaton. The values of the grid condenser and grid leak resistance may be the same as for a regenerative receiver without the radio frequency stage, but it is necessary to provide a potentiometer, as shown, to act as a stabilizer in the radio frequency circuit. The resistance of the potentiometer should be at least 200 ohms in order to conserve the filament lighting battery.

British Judges May Adopt Old Sentence

LONDON.—British judges hope soon to enforce the "cat o' nine tails" as an addition to terms of imprisonment to men found guilty of selling "dope" to girls.

The public outcry against the dope sellers has been further swelled by the description of the living room of one of these sellers recently sentenced.

Writing the London Times, a king's councillor says:

"Picture the prisoner's room as it was described by the police!

"In it were phials of morphine, a bottle with traces of cocaine, an opium pipe, a pocketbook containing drugs and a "dope" price list, a revolver and a number of very indecent photographs.

"The worst of poisons, poisons which dethrone the reason and destroy self-control, firearms and obscene photographs! Can anyone imagine the fate of these girls, who, in their innocence, entered that arsenal of vice?"

This man was sentenced only to six months.

The public are demanding that men of his kind should be given six years and a horsewhipping, with the "cat," into the bargain.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY'S OLD STRAW HAT

"Well, Uncle Wiggily, I'm ready, if you are," said Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy to the bunny rabbit gentleman one afternoon.

"Ready for what?" asked Uncle Wiggily, as he saw that his muskrat lady housekeeper was all dressed up, new bonnet, shawl and everything. "I hope you don't mean that you are ready to see the Fuzzy Fox nibble my ears?"

"Never that!" cried Nurse Jane. "I mean I am ready to go calling on Mrs. Twistytail with you. If you will kindly remember, you promised to go calling this afternoon."

"Oh, dear me! So I did!" said Uncle Wiggily, but in such sad and doleful tones that Miss Fuzzy laughed and said:

"I hope Mrs. Twistytail doesn't hear you, or she will think you don't want to see her."

"Oh, it isn't that," explained the bunny. "I'll go with you to see the pig lady, but I promised Grandfather Goosey Gander I'd go fishing with him. I had forgotten I had said I'd go with you. But as long as I promised you first I'll go. Where's my old straw hat?" and Uncle Wiggily looked around for it.

"Didn't you get a new straw hat yet?" quickly asked Nurse Jane. "Or didn't you have the old one cleaned?"

"No," said Uncle Wiggily, "I didn't. It's so near the end of the straw hat season I didn't want to get a new one, and I keep forgetting to have my old one cleaned."

"Dear me!" exclaimed Nurse Jane. "Your old straw hat is a disgrace to wear, so dirty it is and stained, and the brim is broken. I'm almost ashamed to be seen with you!"

"Oh, I'll stay home! You don't need to take me calling with you!" quickly cried the bunny, his pink nose eagerly twinkling.

"No," said Nurse Jane firmly, with a little twitching of her whiskers; "I told Mrs. Twistytail I'd bring you, and I shall—old straw hat and all."

"Very well," said Uncle Wiggily, calm and resigned like. And soon he was walking with the muskrat lady to the home of the pig lady.

"Oh, I'm so glad to see you!" grunted Mrs. Twistytail. "So good of Uncle Wiggily to come!"

"Oh, I'll get another if you want me to," said Uncle Wiggily, and he put his old straw hat on the porch, and then he and Nurse Jane sat down to talk with Mrs. Twistytail.

Pretty soon Curly and Floppy Twistytail, the piggie boys, came along, and saw Uncle Wiggily's hat on the porch. The bunny gentleman and Nurse Jane had gone inside to have a cup of sassafras tea which Mrs. Twistytail made.

"Oh, I know how we can have some fun!" grunted Floppy. "We can take Uncle Wiggily's old straw hat, put a paper sail on it and have a boat to sail in the duck pond."

"Maybe he won't like us to use his hat for a boat," said Curly.

"Oh, he won't care!" laughed Floppy. "I heard him say he was going to get a new hat. We can take his old one."

So the piggie boys did, making a sail boat of it, and sending it back and forth across the duck pond. Two or three times the old hat was stuck on a mud bank, but the piggie boys pushed it off with poles.

"Oh, let's don't play boat any more," grunted Floppy after a bit. "Let's play tag." So they did, leaving Uncle Wiggily's old straw hat in the grass.

There, a little while later, Susie Littletail, the rabbit girl, found it.

"Oh, I guess Uncle Wiggily doesn't want this hat any more," said Susie. "I'll make my doll a hammock out of it." And she did, swinging her doll, Martha Matilda Lemonpie, in the old straw hat, with strands of wild grape vine to hang it between two trees.

But, after a while, Susie became tired of hammocking her doll, so the little rabbit girl tossed the hat away in the bushes. There Billie Wagtail, the goat boy, found it, and after eating a little

"The hat makes a very good basket!" bleated Billy piece out of the brim, he used Uncle Wiggily's old straw hat to carry home some red raspberries in.

"The hat is a very good basket!" bleated Billie. And it was, though some of the crushed berries made red stains on the hat.

Billie lived near Mrs. Twistytail, the pig lady. And just as he was passing that house it was time for Nurse Jane and Uncle Wiggily to start back home.

"But where's my old straw hat?" asked the Bunny. "I left it out on the porch and now I can't find it." Nurse Jane saw Billie with the hat basket filled with berries.

"There's your hat, Wiggily!" said the muskrat lady. "But, oh, such a sight as it is!"

"I—I didn't do it all!" stammered Billie. "I found the hat after Susie and the piggie boys had finished playing with it, and——"

"Mercy sakes, Billie! Don't say a word!" laughed Nurse Jane. "I have been trying for a month to get Uncle Wiggily to buy a new hat. Now he'll just have to, for he can't wear such a looking sight!"

"No, I guess I can't!" agreed the bunny, twinkling his nose as he looked at his torn, battered, muddy and berry-stained hat. "I'll go get a new one right away," and he did.

So, after all, something good came of what happened. And if the pussy cat goes quietly to sleep in the pansy bed and doesn't tickle the string beans with her tail, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the cakes.

They Say That

"Buy suburban real estate now!" This is a slogan, not from a dealer in realty; it is not taken from a realty ad; it is not from a man who has realty to sell, or who represents those who have realty to sell; it is from Roger W. Babson, internationally famous as an adviser on financial and economic matters.

Mr. Babson strongly believes that a reverse tide from the city to the country—that is, to the suburban country—is setting in. For the last ten years a mighty groundswell of humanity has moved toward the city. But with phenomenal distribution of automobiles among the middle class and workingmen, it is possible for great numbers to own homes and to live in comfort on the outskirts of centers of population and to go back an forth daily. Mr. Babson predicts the phenomenal upbuilding of suburbs in the next ten or more years. And those who observe and study conditions and tendencies closely are ready to agree with Mr. Babson: Which does not mean that city property, close in, is going to deteriorate. By no means. Just the contrary. Everybody cannot live in the heart of the city. Somebody must live outside. As population increases, there are more and more families to be housed. Hence the backflow of population from the already filled centers of cities, to the expanding suburbs. As suburbs build up, property in downtown districts surely will enhance in value. For downtown and suburb are closely inter-related. When one thrives, the other feels the thriving impulse.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

TWO KINDS OF DIGNITY

Dignity is a fine quality.

We may like people who completely lack it, but we do not respect them or have a deep confidence in them.

Dignity is useful. It helps you to keep people at a distance when you want to; it helps an executive handle those who are under him or her.

It provides a sort of air cushion between oneself and the people about one which makes for less friction, less crowding in one's contacts with other people.

Self Respect and Reserve

I suppose true dignity is a combination of self respect, with consideration for others, and that dash of reserve which breeding always inculcates.

But there is another kind of dignity, the kind that we mean when we say a person "stands on his dignity."

In any gathering of people there are always a few who hang back and won't join in any diversion that is proposed, especially if it is a game which requires that one drop any of the stand-on-his-dignity kind of dignity.

They will watch the other people; they will apparently enjoy seeing what others do, but when you approach them for their contribution to the fun, you go away empty-handed.

Never the Goat

If it's a game in which someone has to take the position of goat, count them out. They will somehow or other always escape when it comes their turn.

And, as people usually do when they are different from others, they pride themselves on what is nothing more nor less than selfishness.

I think I have done wrong to use the word "dignity" in this connection. The thing which really holds people back at such times isn't dignity at all. I have seen the most dignified people unbend at the right moment. It is rather, I think, a blend of four qualities, a little selfishness, a little laziness, a little deficiency in sense of humor and a great deal of self-consciousness.

The Hanger Back

The man who said: "Everywhere I go there is some man who is the life of the party and how I do hate that man," said a witty thing. But just the same I'll bet he was the kind of man who always hangs back, never starts anything, never is willing to take his turn at being the goat. And between him and the life of the party is a happy medium more to be admired than either.

Beauty Chats

by Edna Kent Forbes

THE SUMMER GIRL

The Summer girl is always pretty. I do not exactly know why. It may be because she is living a healthy outdoor life. It may be because she has temporarily thrown off the worries of office work or family responsibility. It is quite likely because of her cool, dainty dresses, which give us a glimpse of her sunburnt throat and her rounded, healthy arms. It may be because she is on a vacation or simply because Summer is always the happiest time.

And it may be, as a friend suggested, because the observer himself is in a holiday mood and views the world and his fellow men and women through rose colored spectacles.

So there you have any number of reasons and you may take your choice, but the fact is undeniable, the Summer girl is pretty. One observant feminine friend said to me that women, as a rule, dress better in Summer than in Winter. Summer clothes cost less, that's the obvious reason. $15 does not purchase much in the way of a wool frock, but will secure a very handsome Summer one. Low shoes which reveal slim silk stockinged ankles are infinitely more becoming than high shoes.

Summertime foods are healthier than Winter foods. In the warm weather we eat all sorts of things that are good for us. In the Winter we are apt to make our complexions muddy with starchy foods, and our noses red from rich puddings. The worst crime we can commit in the Summer is to drink too much iced water or soda water.

For that reason the Summer girl is apt to have a better complexion and better eyes. I fancy she is pretty because she is really healthy.

Mary Ann—If you are steaming your face every day it will coarsen the pores in time. There would be no harm in your using hot water, since you say it refreshes you, but you should rinse in cool and then finish with dashes of very cold water, as the cold water closes the pores.

Worried:—The mixture of peroxide and ammonia in equal parts,

The summer girl is always pretty so often used for bleaching superfluous hair, cannot injure the tissues. It may irritate the skin much the same as a slight burn, but it will heal and bleach off after a few days.

Shortie: As you only gave ages and did not state height, I cannot compute the weight.

HOUSEHOLD CARE AND USE OF FATS

Fat is the most concentrated form in which fuel constituents (for heat and energy) are found, about 95 per cent being digested by a normal person.

Fat of all kinds should be saved and used. Many butchers trim meat and fowl to improve appearance; if we do not claim what we have paid for, the dealer will sell it a second time for soap making, or render it himself. Fat trimmed for meat at home should be saved. It may take several days to accumulate enough to be worth preparing, but in a cool place clear fat will keep for some time.

Mutton fat has strong flavor, so is not used as much for cooking as it might be if carefully prepared; some housewives make a clean, hard white soap from this fat after it has been rendered and clarified. The can of lye required gives full direction for the process. Such soap must dry for some time before using, to prove economical.

Rendering Fats—For rendering the outerskin and all lean parts are removed, then the fat is cut small, or run through the food chopper, with coarse adjustment. Strong fat is improved by soaking some hours in cold salt water and rinsing well before heating. To one pound of fat add one-third cup of cold water and cook very slowly (over low fire or in the oven), until bubbling ceases. Hot fat, when stiff, is fairly dry. Watch carefully, as it burns easily after water evaporates. Overheated fat has bad flavor and is indigestible. In a shallow closely covered utensil, with gas turned to lowest point, there is no danger of fat cooking too rapidly and when almost done the cover may be removed to complete evaporation.

A slower and perhaps easier method is to use a double boiler; no watching is necessary, no burning is possible nor any odor noticeable, and the fat keeps better if not over-heated. This method needs no liquid with the fat, except in the case of mutton, when the use of milk is desirable; one-half cup to the pound of fat will take off some of the strong flavor. Sour milk is best as the curd stays back and holds particles with it when strained. Heavy cloth must always be used in straining, and when the fat is cold the mass easily separates from liquid. Any rendered fat must be free from liquid to keep well. This is why commercial fats keep better than home rendered factory methods and are more accurate. Clear fat, after straining, is best reheated, to sterilize, and determine its freedom from moisture. Stir occasionally while cooling to make it smooth and whiter. Charcoal may also be used in rendering odorous fats—a dozen clean pieces, about the size of a walnut are needed for a pound of fat.

Good results are obtained by rendering mutton suet and leaf lard two to one, dry or with whole milk or by combining either beef or mutton and vegetable oil (corn or cottonseed) in proportion of three to one (by double boiler cooking); the blend improves consistency and modifies flavor.

Savory Fats—Various seasonings make possible the uses of strong fat like duck or goose, as well as meat fats. The addition of a sour apple, a small slice of onion, bay leaf and salt and pepper is one combination; another is the use of herbs, such as sage, summer savory, thyme or sweet marjoram, tied in cloth.

Clarifying Fats — The fat skimmed from soup and the drippings from roasting and broiling may be clarified by heating slowly with slices of raw potato until it ceases to bubble—cool partly, then strain through cloth and set aside to harden. Or, we may add boiling water to fat, let boil a few minutes and set aside. When cold the fat is removed in a solid cake and the impurities clinging to it scraped off. This process may be repeated several times to make it more clear, but will not remove odors. A pinch of baking soda is often added to whiten fat.

Girl Asked to Kill Chicks, Takes Poison

FLINT, Mich.—Edna Fansheld has a tender heart. Her mother asked her to kill some baby chickens that had been injured in a storm.

The girl started for the coop and then turned suddenly and ran screaming to the house.

"I would rather take my own life than kill little baby chickens," she cried.

Her nine-year-old sister ran after her to the bathroom and managed to knock a bottle of poison from her hand after Edna had swallowed half of it.

She has a chance to recover.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

CONSTIPATION

What will remedy constipation in one individual will not always be effective in another. Trite but true.

If the constipation is due to a lack of residue in the diet, it is obvious that the thing to do is to increase the cellular vegetables or to include some article like bran.

One should avoid sugar and white flour products, for while they are good energy foods, they contain no residue and very few mineral salts or vitamins. For sweetening, then, use honey or molasses.

While a moderate amount of fat is laxative, too much fat is constipating—probably by causing the diet to become unbalanced.

If it is not possible for you to get bran bread, you can get a package of bran, especially prepared by the manufacturers of cereals, and you can take a small cup or a half cup of that in the morning or evening. Have a regular time for it. If you are counting Calories—a small cup is about 50 Calories. If you take cereals for breakfast—which you do if you are trying to gain and don't if you are trying to reduce—the bran can be added to the cereal.

As I told you last week, Dr. Kellogg of Battle Creek believes the bowels should move two or three times a day and he gives enough bran to insure the result. He says that it is nonsense to say that bran is irritating to the mucous membrane, for it is his experience that the digestive juices will soften the toughest specimen.

Try this method for a long enough time—at least a week. I should say. If this is not effective, try adding a dish of prunes (four large prunes, 100 C.) before retiring, or you may try a large tablespoon of mineral oil or pure vaseline. Mineral oils are put up under different trade names and can be purchased in any drug store.

If, after a thorough trial of this combination method, you are not successful, you probably could eat a bale of hay without effect. And you will have to try something else.

The vegetable gelatin or Japanese seaweed, agar-agar, apparently is able to get by the most diligent digestive tract without being absorbed. It has the further ability of doing a little absorbing on its own account and it takes to itself enough water to make the bowel movement of good consistency.

The amount necessary depends upon the individual and you have to find that out for yourself. You might begin with a large tablespoonful of the granulated. Moisten this with hot water, add cream or milk and take as a cereal, or add more water and drink it down. It is delicious either way if you are not careful in the use of your words.

While I was speaking of bran and coarse foods, I should have mentioned shredded wheat biscuits or triscuits (s.w.b. 100 C.; triscuits 50 C. each). If these are used instead of bread, or if they are used as cereal, they are very often effective in constipation.

If you are not under-weight you might try making one of your meals consist wholly of uncooked vegetables or fruit. There are many vegetables that are more delicious raw than cooked. You often eat lettuce, tomatoes, cabbage and so on. Now try minced beets, corn, spinach, peas, etc., in the same manner. You can make a mixture of any raw vegetables that you like into a loaf and serve as a salad. If you add peanuts, you can serve it as a meat or protein dish, especially if you serve it with a sauce made of peanut butter (Vegetables from 5 to 20 C's. an ounce; peanuts, 10 to 12 double, 100 C's; peanut butter, 1 1-2 level tablespoonful, 100 C's).

Resume

For constipation:

1. Stop worrying about it.
2. Balanced diet, containing considerable cellulose. Drink sufficient water.
3. Regular time for evacuation. Food is the best stimulus to the movement of the intestinal tract; therefore, plan for this important time after a meal.

Exercise, especially brisk walking.

5. No drugs.
6. Small cool enemas if necessary.

WORK CLOTHING

Strange as it may seem to American exporters and manufacturers of work clothing have overlooked entire countries which are eager to buy their product if only approached, says the Textile Division of the Department of Commerce.

Very interesting reports have already been received covering Scotland, Fiume, Jugoslavia, the Philippines, China, Japan, India, British West Indies, Guatamala, Costa Rica, El Salvador, and Colombia, and other similar information is coming into the Textile Division, says Edward T. Pickard, its Chief, who urges interested manufacturers to communicate with the Department of Commerce so that arrangements can be made to supply them with the information regularly.

LICENSED WAREHOUSES

More than 1,500,000 bales of cotton were received during last season, up to June 1, in cotton warehouses licensed under the United States warehouse act, the Department of Agriculture reports. The number of bales on hand May 31 in these warehouses was 268,345.

There are 271 cotton warehouses now under Federal license. The licensed cotton storage capacity has been increased more than three times what it was on May 31, 1921.

There has also been a great increase in the number of grain warehouses requesting to be licensed under the United States warehouse act, particularly in the Northwest. The number of grain warehouses now licensed is 261; sixteen tobacco warehouses and twenty-three wool warehouses are also licensed.

RAILROAD WAGE

A statement by the Railway Executives says that in April, 1922, the last month for which wage figures (reported to the Interstate Commerce Commission) are available—the average earnings per railroad employe were at the annual rate of $1,568.00.

Book Reviews

In "Claim Number One," George W. Ogden has set down a surprisingly new type of Western story—one that lays before the reader a picture of the sort of feudalism that obtained on America's Western frontier at one time, and, if the whisperings that leak out of congressional halls may be believed, it is a sort of feudalism that is not yet extinct by any means.

The story might roughly be classed as a Western cowboy yarn, but that would be doing the author far less than justice. It opens with a picture of the settlement of government land in Wyoming. Lots are being drawn on an Indian reservation and following the drawing there is the usual desperate struggle against land sharpers. In this particular story the head and front of the lawless ones is none other than the governor of the state.

Ogden has striven consistently to keep his story out of the paths trodden flat by fiction convention. His hero is out of the ordinary run of Western heroes, a doctor with a taste for adventure; the heroine is likewise a girl who fits in with the frontier life instead of being a poor experiment in transplanting. The end, too, is unconventional, with the dreams of these two still dreams, and perhaps they continued so to the end of their lives.

Those who love Western stories for the sake of the mountain air and the occasionally exciting whiff of gunpowder will enjoy "Claim Number One," and it will be no less enjoyed by those who love any good story for its own sake.

KID ESSICK GETS DECISION FROM BURBANK KING

Johnny Myers Proves He Is Too Much for Watkins; Show Big Success

In what was generally conceded to be one of the best bouts of the evening, Kid Essick of Glendale was awarded the decision over "Burbank" King of Burbank, after a three-round bout, three-minute rounds. Johnny Myers won the decision over Young Watkins of Glendale in a bout of the same length.

Last night's affair, which was held in the I. O. O. F. hall at the corner of Broadway and Orange street was the greatest success of any boxing contest ever staged here by the Modern Woodmen of America. S. R. O. signs were in order by the time the first match started, for every seat in the house was taken.

Not only on account of the record crowd, but also because of the character of the bouts, the contest was an unqualified success. A larger hall could be used with better success, but the managers state that no larger place is available in Glendale.

Offer Some Action

The first bout of the evening was between Young King and Kid Woodley. The limit was three rounds of two minutes each, and the referee was Curly O'Connell. The boys went at in lively fashion, King displaying fancy footwork and some good rushes, while the Kid got in some mean ones without much dancing. The Kid took considerable punishment during the bout, but toward the last he made up for lost time. The fray was declared a draw.

Walter Dodge and Dave Casa Grande, two of Glendale's premier young wrestlers, then staged an exhibition boxing bout, also of three rounds, and refereed by O'Connell. As boxers, the two might be called good wrestlers. The affair started as more of a slugging match than anything else, and the crowd went wild over the heavy ones landed by both men.

After the first round the referee evidently put the boys wise to "boxing as she should be boxed," for in the second period they started out with a little more caution. This didn't last long, however, and in a short time they were again trading swats.

They both were going strong at the end of the third round, but Dodge appeared to have a little the edge on Dave, and Walt was awarded the decision.

Fans Expect Something

The next was one of the main events of the evening. The peppful little Kid Essick, sponsored by Johnny Myers, appeared on the scene and received an ovation. "Burbank" King also put in an appearance, and the crowd again burst loose. They were evidently expecting great things, and they got them soon after.

"Remember, Kid," yelled Johnny Myers, "you licked him last Armistice Day and you can do it again."

The bout was announced as a three-round affair, periods three minutes each. George Male, manager for Stone and Watkins was referee of this event.

The bout was somewhat slowed up by the constant clinching of the principals. It seemed that every time Essick got within reach of King, the latter would grab the Kid. Essick soon got onto King's tactics, however, and whenever the latter would clinch, the Kid would work on a certain spot on his back, or perhaps on his head.

Essick specialized in a left hook which reached King's head surprisingly often. King also got in his work, and the little Kid was backed into the ropes time after time in the first round.

Kid Has Best of It

After Essick had taken some punishment he really began to work and from then on he had a very evident advantage over King. The little fellow's fists darted in and out through King's guard, and though the latter clinched, the Kid would be at it again as soon as he was free.

Toward the last of the fight it was the Kid who was backing King into the ropes, and at the end of the third round Kid Essick was given the decision.

Ralph Myers was to have fought Howard Kendig of Burbank, but the latter had to postpone the match on account of a broken hand. It was announced that the Ralph Myers-Kendig match would be staged two weeks from last night, on Tuesday August 22.

On last night's card, Rex Hampden of Burbank was substituted for Kendig and Ralph took him on in a three-round bout, refereed by O. M. Clinton. Hampden didn't have a chance. Ralph displayed rare form, and put a lot of speed into his punches. Within a few seconds after the bout started, Ralph laid Hampden through the ropes. The latter stayed down until the last count, when he bobbed up for more.

He got more, too, and before the first round was up Ralph connected one with Hampden's face which laid the latter through the ropes, too weak to continue. Ralph Myers was awarded a technical knockout.

Myers and Watkins

The last match of the evening was a 145-pound affair, featuring Johnny Myers, Glendale's fireman-fighter, and Young Watkins. Myers was to have fought Young Stone, but the latter contracted ptomaine poisoning on Monday, it was announced, and Watkins, his sparring partner, substituted for him.

Johnny easily had it on Watkins. Myers drove his gloves wherever he wished, it seemed. Watkins got in some heavy swings himself, but not consistently as did Johnny. One thing must be said for Young Watkins—he was game. In the first few minutes of the bout he took considerable punishment from Myers, and although the latter afterward quit trying so hard to damage Watkins, he still "got it in the neck."

A number of times, when Johnny had driven Watkins into the ropes, he could have finished the latter. Instead, Johnny stepped back and gave Watkins a chance to get on better footing.

At the end of the third round Watkins was still on his feet, but showing signs of weakness, and Johnny Myers was given the decision.

"Kid Arizona," one of the prides of Burbank, challenged Johnny Myers to a bout, and several other challenges flew promiscuously during the evening. It is planned that the Woodmen will have another such show, possibly two weeks from last night, when some of the challengers will have a chance to meet their men.

Golden State Tennis Stars Win Matches

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 9. Willis E. Davis, of California, the defending title holder, reached the third round of the annual invitation singles for men here Tuesday when he defeated George Walker Jr., of New York, on the courts of the Meadow Club. The score was 6-0, 6-4.

Zenzo Shimidzu and S. Kashio, the Japanese stars, advanced easily to the third round. Shimidzu disposed of F. C. Inman of New York at 6-2, 6-1 and Kashio put out Musgrave Hyde of the same city, 6-2, 6-3. Superior steadiness and greater severity of stroking gained the decision for both of the Japanese without either extending himself in the least.

Howard Kinsey and James Davies, both of California held the center of attention in the second round. Kinsey won at 7-5, 6-4, Davies practically defeated himself on errors, throwing away precious points with trivial errors that often were made after he had brought off brilliant passing shots.

Dempsey-Wills Go Not Yet Arranged

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Jack Kearns has left this city without bringing negotiations for the proposed bout between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills for the heavyweight title any nearer a definite conclusion. Kearns is on his way to Chicago to look into the alleged opposition of officials to the Dempsey-Brennan bout at Michigan City, Ind., on Labor Day.

Sig Hart, who handled Jack Johnson when he fought Jim Jeffries, and an ex-fighter himself, is conceded to be one of the brainiest fight handlers in the business. In a recent battle at Aurora, Charlie Van, his 20-year-old heavyweight, was doing battle and getting the worst of it for six rounds. Sig, seeing that his fighter was in desperate straits, pulled out an oxygen tank, which he has been working on for some months, and gave Van a "shot." The dope rejuvenated Van so much that he knocked his man out in the seventh round.

Tagging All Bases

The Pirates ran their string out to ten straight by knocking the Phils off in a double-header, 19 to 8 and 7 to 3. The Pittsburg entry amassed forty-six hits in the two games, Tierney getting four in each, while Russell got five runs and five hits in the opener. The Pirates now are in third place.

"I only regret that I have but two home runs to give for my ball club," said Tris Speaker, as his Indians finished an indifferent second to the Red Sox, 15 to 6, in spite of their chief's hitting.

Drop kicks from difficult angles by Dave Bancroft gave the Reds a ten inning decision over the Giants, 7 to 4, the shortstop's wild throw to the plate with a double play in sight in the tenth ending it all.

Zachary curve-balled the Browns into a 3 to 1 defeat, allowing only one hit in the first five innings and six thereafter.

The Short Crucible

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Speaking for the National League as a whole and the New York Giants in particular, John McGraw opened his mouth at the start of the season and quoth as follows:

"The Pirates are the team we will have to beat."

It wasn't such a flannel mouthed statement then and it isn't now. The Pirates were and still are obvious contenders but between the start of the season and the present they have spent much of their time in the second division. They didn't belong there any more than Houdini belongs in the White House.

Just at the moment, they have better than an outside chance of heading the Giants and the Cards at the wire, thanks to a spurt that has carried them through recent weeks at top speed.

During the course of this streak they have moved up from the depths with startling delerity and this morning finds them in third place with a record of ten consecutive games won.

Anything is possible in baseball and when a ball club as potentially strong as the Pirates begins to win, a matter of fifty points between it and the league leader is a mere nothing. The further fact that both the Giants and Cards in their present state of mind, are pushovers for the first team that can muster the punch is not exactly discouraging.

McGraw is not getting real baseball out of his champions. His pitching is worse than spotty, the infield is kicking games away and Douglas has just returned in a none too penitent mood from an informal vacation. The Glants have done little better than break even on the home stand and they are soon to take to the road, where their inclination to flop is notorious. Certainly, their immediate future is rather dark.

The Cards, likewise, are making haste slowly. Their pitching has been uniformly bad throughout the present trip; otherwise they would have gone to the pace long since. Any winning ball club would have done so with its only rival playing .500 baseball

The reformation of the Pirates really began at the Polo Grounds a week or so ago when they won four strtight from the Giants and hit so many outside the park that the impression became general that they were playing the Giants five home runs or no count.

The answer to the uprising is three-fold. The Pirates needed a new manager because they couldn't or wouldn't win for Gibson. They got him in "Bill" McKechnie. They needed another outfielder. They got him in "Reb" Russell, the reformed pitcher, whose hitting has been the sensation of the eastern trip. They needed an experienced catcher to get the best out of the pitchers. They got him in Walter Schmidt, who helped develop Glazner and Morrison last year and nursed along Hamilton and Adams.

SPORTS CHATTER

California women are making such headway at golf that the far western state has decided to be properly represented at the National Women's championships at Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, starting September 25.

Miss Doreon Kavanagh of the Coronado Country Club at San Diego, twice winner, and present champion, of the State championship, and Miss Margaret Cameron of the Annadale Country Club of Los Angeles are the two outstanding entries from the west for the national title. The two girls are among the best players on the coast and they play a well finished game on the links.

It will be the first appearance of Miss Cameron on Eastern links, while Miss Kavanagh was a starter in the national tournament at Cleveland in 1920. She qualified in that tourney with a 96 but fell by the wayside in the first round of play by a margin of 4 and 3 in her match with Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck of Philadelphia.

Since that time Miss Kavanagh has greatly improved her game and holds some of the best records for women on several Coast courses, notably the Coronado Country Club links. She first won a title in 1919 when she annexed the Coronado Country Club title but lost it in 1920. Since then she has been unbeatable in this tournament and won the event both in 1921 and 1922 while this year she again won the California State title.

Miss Cameron of the Los Angeles Annadale Country Club is another finished player of championship caliber. She won the State title in 1920 and the Northern California title in 1921 and 1922, and when she and Miss Kavanagh are matched up their game is always of such a caliber that it is a toss up as to the winner and they attract the largest gallery that follow the women's games wherever they may be playing.

There are one or two other high ranking Coast women who may eventually decide to enter the National tournament next month. One of these is Mrs. Robert Roos of the Beresford Country Club of San Francisco. She has been cutting a wide swath this year in all the important tourneys and is on a par with the play of the two champions above mentioned. She is the outstanding player in the San Francisco women as aspirants at the present time and is considered the logical representative of San Francisco.

The great showing of John Black, professional, in the recent national open championships, has attracted more notice to Pacific coast golf than the work of any other player, not even excepting the great game of Hunter of Los Angeles who was a member of the amateur American team which toured Great Britain last year. The women players are fast approaching that standard where coast enthusiasts believe they will have a chance in the national title for the fair sex and the eastern invasion of Misses Kavanagh and Cameron will therefore attract more than general interest.

The WORLD OVER

By Franklin B. Morse

Followers of aquatics will have their eyes focused on Coronado Tent City, Calif., this month on the occasion of the National Senior High Diving championships which are slated to take place there Sunday, August 20. That this event will rate high is practically assured by the fact that both the present champion and the man from whom he wrested the title will be among the entrants.

Of particular interest to the coast will be the annual Pacific Coast swimming championships in various distances which will be held at the same place on Saturday and Sunday, August 26 and 27. Practically all the good swimmers will be on hand, including strong teams from the Olympic club of San Francisco, and the Multnomah Athletic club of Portland.

Both events will be held under the auspices of the Coronado Tent City Athletic Club and governed by rules of the Amateur Athletic Union whose sanction it has. Regulation A. A. U. medals will be awarded to winners in each event.

Entries may be made by all registered amateur athletes in good standing. Blanks may be had on application of M. C Pferrerkorn, chairman of the Southern Pacific Association of the A. A. U., First National Bank, San Diego, California.

Charlie McKenna, of New York, national light heavyweight boxer champion in the amateur ranks, evidently is not at all dismayed by the experiences of other amateurs who have forsaken the amateur ranks for the professional game. Whether or not McKenna will prove the exception to the rule and make good among the professionals remains to be seen. There have been few boys who have held the national title who have made any kind of a mark for themselves in commercial pugilism. The average boxer who has made good has been the one to go right into the ham egg class with little or no regard for any amateur preliminaries.

100,000 Population In 10 Years, Predicted

Glendale will have a population of 100,000 in the next ten years.

City Manager W. H. Reeves this morning confirmed this prediction. He estimates that the population of 30,000 will be doubled in the next five years.

With a view to the future, Mr. Reeves believes that the city should acquire as much territory as possible in order to be able to take care of this growth.

Speaking about the proposed annexation of Casa Verdugo to Glendale, Mr. Reeves said that the city administration was now awaiting the necessary petition from the residents of this district.

"We will further this proposition all we can," he remarked. "We will be very glad to render any assistance possible meantime. We would be glad to take care of them in the collection of garbage and give them fire protection. We think we can render them services which will make their closer association with us pleasant and profitable."

Proceedings are now in process for the improvement of Dryden and Stocker streets which run into the Casa Verdugo district from the east.

Report Is Submitted On Research Hospital

The Glendale Research Hospital is now in the best financial condition since it was built, according to the report submitted last night to its board of directors by A. L. Baird, secretary and treasurer of the company.

The meeting was held in the offices of the Roy L. Kent Construction company at 130 South Brand boulevard. C. W. Ingledue, president of the board, presided. Herman Nelson, Roy L. Kent and Dr. T. C. Young were among others present.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pope, superintendent of the institution, explained that the hospital is now full a large part of the time.

The advisability of adding another unit was discussed favorably and a decision was reached to prepare a semi-annual statement for the stockholders before taking further action. The board of directors rejoiced in the fact that the site contains room for another building.

According to Mrs. Pope's report twenty-one special nurses were on the job last week and it was necessary to buy new cots for them.

J. G. Huntley Family Enjoying Northwest

From Lake Louise in the Pacific northwest, the other side of the American line in Canada, comes word that the J. G. Huntley family is enjoying its trip immensely.

They write that the steamer trip from Los Angeles to Seattle was great, some people being kind and thoughtful to the poor fish.

"But the wonderful scenery up here makes up for lost time, our hiking and riding trips have eclipsed all others in the past for scenic grandeur—90 per cent perfect and 10 per cent for 'skeeters' and smoke from forest fires. All is well with us, but we miss our Glendale friends and The News."

MINOR OPERATION

A minor operation was performed at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital this morning upon Miss Alice Van Tassell of 110 North Cedar street.

Declares 'Thirteen' His Lucky Number

OTTUMWA, Ia.—J. C. Belland of Muskegon, Mich., who is in Iowa, walking around the world, left Washington May 13, 1913, at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Thirteenth street at 9:13 o'clock in the morning, with 13 cents in his pocket. He said here that he is the thirteenth child in a family of thirteen and was born May 13.

Mr. Belland has a bank account of 13 cents in every town he has visited. He said he has 36,334 accounts, including the one made here. At 13 cents each, they would amount to $4723.32. He has 2,983 more accounts than the Rockefellers, Vanderbilts, Goulds, the Standard Oil Company, Henry Ford and all the railways and express companies in the world combined. Each account is verified by a postoffice stamp and these are stamped on 216 yards of cloth, cut up into strips.

To date he has been in every county seat in the United States, with the exception of 177. He has visited Mexico, Canada, South and Central America, West Indies and Japan.

Final Suggestions for Name of City Park

The word finis has been inscribed at the close of the list of 150 suggestions for the new park's name by the final suggestion from a Glendale merchant that the new park be called Golden Jewel City park.

This suggestion comes from none other than T. Kuranaga manager of the Japan Art and Tea store, who explains that the word Golden expresses the California idea and the Jewel City stands for Glendale.

Two other suggestions were received late this morning. They were Oak Glen park, Monte Vista park and King park.

The final suggestion received at The News office was Verdugo Hills park, which the writer says is suggestive of the Verdugo Road and of the surrounding hill country. He continues that this name would serve as a guide to motorists and would be of historical significance and be a lasting tribute to the memory of the Verdugo family.

Soldier, Asleep, Shot, Killed by Unknown

STAUNTON, Ind., Aug. 9.—The first casualty in the attempt of the state of Indiana to operate strip coal mines here occurred early today when Private Charles Hoskins, of Gary, member of the 83rd Field Signal company of the Indiana National Guard, was shot while sleeping in his tent near the camp of the strikebreakers. The shot was fired by an unknown man who attempted to slip through a sentry. The man fired one shot which went wild and struck Private Hoskins. Hoskins was not seriously injured and was being cared for today in the camp infirmary.

$30,000,000 Damage Kill 20,000 Persons

SHANGHAI, Aug. 9.—Damage estimated at $30,000,000 was caused and 20,000 persons killed by a typhoon which ravaged the treaty port city of Swatow, according to a dispatch received by the Shanghai chamber of commerce.

An appeal has been received from Hong Kong for a Red Cross relief expedition.

The typhoon raged for several days. It was accompanied by torrential rains. The Ursuline Convent, conducted by sisters from Montreal, was wrecked. The nuns saved themselves by clinging to the beams when the flooded waters rose around the building.

Experts Will Oppose German Plan, Belief

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The report of the allied committee of experts to the indemnity conference, which was to be opened this afternoon, is expected to oppose the German reprisal program of Premier Poincare of France.

It was understood that the Belgians were making efforts to effect a compromise between the two factions in the conference. M. Jaspar, head of the Belgian delegation, and his colleagues were said to have drawn up a set of new proposals to meet the demand of Premier Poincare for new German guarantees.

"Hey," bellowed the aggrieved and muddy buck, "didn't you see that big army truck run right over me?"

"Yep," agreed the appreciative M. P. "Nice piece of work, wasn't it?"

Refuse to Work If Troops Are Retained

JOLIET, Ill., Aug. 9.—"Take away the soldiers or we won't move a wheel," was the ultimatum of nearly 1,300 "Big Four" brotherhood railroad men today.

Engineers, firemen, trainmen and conductors on the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad had quit work in protest to the martial law zone thrown around the shop area where rioting occurred Monday resulting in the death of a railroad detective and a striker and the wounding of Sheriff James A. Newkirk. Other shifts announced they would quit work during the day unless the soldiers were recalled.

Meanwhile the troops continued to do guard duty. Colonel Nelson Morris, in command, stated he was acting under orders from his superiors and had no authority to recall his men until the orders were countermanded. The situation was tense here today.

Protest Against Use Of Strike-Breakers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Formal protest against the reported importation of strike breakers direct from Europe by some of the railroads affected by the shopmen's strike was made to Secretary of Labor Davis today.

Bert M. Jewell, strike leader, demanded investigation by the labor department. He also cabled officials of the British labor in London asking that an inquiry be made.

Eastside Horseshoe Club to Be Formed

W. G. Collins announces that an East Side Horseshoe and Croquet club will be organized under the eucalyptus trees on Glendale avenue between Wilson and Broadway tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Many of the members of the lone club of its kind here would be glad to play nearer home, it is stated, and give some competition to the other organization.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water — you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Advertisement.

Alfred Cookman Is Praised In Newspaper

An interesting account of the work of Alfred Cookman's work in San Diego is given in a recent edition of a San Diego paper. Mr. Cookman, who is the son of Rev. W. W. Cookman, has resigned his duties with the San Diego High school, the St. Joseph hospital and the Balboa park museum to take up the position of biology and hygiene in the Los Angeles Polytechnic High school. He and Mrs. Cookman plan to make their future home at 718 Glendale avenue, Glendale.

The San Diego newspaper says of Mr. Cookman: "The Balboa park museum of natural history has found the local scientist and naturalist a real friend for he has led 'nature walks' under the auspices of the museum and has addressed an audience in the lecture hall of the museum on topics of interest in the realm of nature.

Mr. Cookman has appeared before nearly all the children of the city schools, at churches in and around San Diego, and before the Lions' club, the Y. M. C. A. and other organizations. He has served as ornithologist and science teacher at the high school and agricultural instructor in the evening high school, and also given instruction in bacteriology and hygiene in the nurses' training school at St. Joseph's hospital.

"Mrs. Cookman is an active worker in the Civic club of the city and did social settlement work in New York City for a number of years before her marriage.

"Mr. Cookman will return to San Diego at intervals to conduct 'nature walks' for the Balboa museum and will be heard on the platform of the San Diego Women's club in the fall and at the Balboa park museum."

New Scale Will Be Secured, Predicted

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 9. — While Indians and Western Pennsylvania operators apparently remained steadfast in their determination not to enter the joint conference which reassembled here this afternoon upon the call of President John L. Lewis to negotiate a wage scale which will end the nineteen-week tie-up in the union coal fields of the United States, both operators and miners were confident today that a new scale would be negotiated and signed within a few days, and that coal would again be running over the tipples in union mines early next week.

Appointment of a joint scale committee of about twenty members is expected to be the first action taken when the conference reassembles at 3 o'clock. Inasmuch as the terms have already been practically agreed upon, little difficulty is expected in agreeing upon the terms, which will include the concession of the 1920 wage scale on the part of the operators, including the "check off" system of collecting union dues, and the waiving by the miners of demands for a five-day week and the six-hour day.

Proposes Legislation As Strike Solution

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9. — The only solution for this present series of nation-wide strikes is proper legislation action.

This was the declaration of Vice-President Calvin Coolidge in an interview here today. The vice-president is here to address the convention of the American Bar association.

"There is but one solution to industrial differences when the interested parties can't agree and that is arbitration. When that fails as it has in both coal and rail strikes and the public generally is affected, then it is a problem to be dealt with by congress," the vice-president declared.

"The people of the United States can be assured that the president will take all necessary steps sufficient to insure production and distribution of coal. Our present high state of civilization demands that for the good of the majority, a minority make concessions. Today, the coal miners and operators and the rail workers represent the minority — the great American public, the majority.

Harding to Deliver Message to Congress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—President Harding probably will go before congress next week to deliver in person an executive message dealing with the grave industrial situation confronting the country as a result of the combined rail and coal strikes.

It was with this in mind that Mr. Harding notified party leaders of his desire to have a full congress assembled in Washington next Tuesday and ready for action. He is convinced that the legislative branch of the government has about reached the end of its rope in dealing with the twin tie-ups and he wants to be assured of legislative support in further moves.

The president will take no more steps in the rail or coal strikes until he has received from the railway executives and the railway unions on Saturday the answer to his latest proposal. Both sides meet on Friday, and every indication points to a rejection of his appeal by one or both parties to the controversy.

George Kelly Smacks Out Two Home Huns

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—George Kelly, frist baseman of the Giants, knocked out his eleventh and twelfth home runs of the season in the seventh and ninth innings Tuesday. Rixey was pitching at the time. Kelly's second homer tied up the game.

WESTSIDE PEOPLE HOLD DEBATE ON SCHOOL BONDS

the purchase of a site in the westside for a high school.

Still another view voiced forcibly was that if the time comes when Eagle Rock builds its own high school and the Glendale High school develops into a central high school of the city it should be located centrally and not away on the east side of the city.

Judge F. H. Lowe was one of the speakers during the evening and he spoke in favor of the coming bond issue. O. M. Newby and J. R. Grey, local realtors, were also speakers.

No definite action was taken to close the discussion but the time devoted to the high school question was declared to be well spent and afforded many of those present the chance to become informed with all sides of the question before the meeting Thursday night.

S. P. Station Project

With all phases of the high school question discussed the company listened to E. D. Yard, who presented for consideration a petition urging that the Southern Pacific build a new station near Milford street and San Fernando road, where it owns over an acre of ground. This ground was used thirty years ago for a Southern Pacific station and, according to the provision made then, if the land is not used for a station it reverts back to the former owners.

Following the example of the Chamber of Commerce, the Eastside Improvement association and the City Council, the Westside association heartily endorsed the petition.

Westside Park

There wasn't much to be said by Councilman A. H. Lapham, who represented the City Council, when the westside people recited how long the westside park at the end of Patterson avenue had been neglected regardless of petitions for improvements. Lack of funds, however, is said to have held back up-keep and improvements but since the purchase of the $60,000 park in Verdugo Hills some improvements have been begun in the ten acre Patterson avenue park, much to the gratification of westside residents.

Very little time was devoted to the discussion of the opening and widening of Patterson avenue. The original proposition has been killed and until the subject is brought up officially by the city council there will be no formal discussion, it was stated.

During the meeting thirteen new members were received into the association.

The next meeting of the association will be Tuesday night, September 12.

Marriages no doubt are made by heaven, but most of the preliminaries are arranged in the porch swing.

PEACE, HAPPINESS HELP IN MAKING SECTION GREAT

derlying reasons. The only factor in production now is the human factor, and the world through the war learned that men and women produce more where conditions are most favorable. And here twelve months of the year employes can get to their work!

"Over 300,000 acres of new land have been put in operation in Los Angeles county in the last year. This one country, mind you, has an assessed valuation greater than twenty-six states and it is the greatest county the world has ever known.

Empire In Making

"The slogan, 'What we have not we go and get,' is very trite. Ten years ago the San Fernando valley was a barley field. Today it has seven modern cities—an empire in the making—with a quarter of million or more people living here.

"Friends, this era of development is only beginning. You can go out anywhere in Southern California and invest money and you cannot help but realize a satisfactory return on the investment."

Mr. Haddock then hastily reviewed the conditions which are making the progress and prosperity of the southland permanent. Trade with the orient, South America, the building of a subway, the expenditure of $29,000,000 at once by the railroads in the southwest, the motion picture industry, the citrus groves, the deepest and heaviest producing oil sands in the world, all were touched upon as factors.

"It is the most wonderful country for the most remarkable men and women God ever made," he said in closing, with a verse libre printed elsewhere.

Harding's Friend Wins Governor Nomination

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9.—Colonel Carmi A. Thompson of Cleveland, close friend of President Harding, has won out over a field of nine for the Republican nomination for governor, in the face of fairly complete returns from all sections of the state here this morning. His plurality over Charles L. Knight, progressive, and C. Homer Durand, "wet" candidate, may reach 70,000.

Senator Atlee Pomerene, Democrat, and Congressman Simeon D. Fess, Republican, were nominated for senator in the Democratic and Republican primaries, respectively.

A. V. Donehey of New Philadelphia, candidate for governor in 1920, will oppose Thompson in November, despite the opposition of Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, and the party organizations in Cleveland and Cincinnati.

didn't have time to inquire about them."

Business Flourishing

A number of the towns en route have beautiful parks, many of them located in the center of the city. Glendale's lack in this respect made itself poignantly felt.

According to Mr. Kent, business is flourishing in the northwest. He believes that this section of the country has recovered from its depression. As proof he cited the fact that steel for a nineteen-story building is now in place in Tacoma and that a forty-story building is being occupied at Seattle. He was much surprised, however, to find that business frontage in Tacoma, a city of 110,000, is not worth any more than Brand boulevard frontage, Glendale.

The party went north over the valley route, through the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys. They passed through Redding, Shasta Springs, and went through Grant's Pass. They avoided Glendale, Ore., by about three miles. They then passed through Eugene, Corvallis, Albany, Salem, the capital of Oregon, and Portland. In Washington they visited Chehalis, Aberdeen, Hoquiam, Tacoma, Seattle and Bellingham. On the return trip they followed the coast as closely as possible and passed through Crescent City, Eureka and Oakland. Because of numerous previous trips to San Francisco they had no desire to visit it again.

Portrait Painter To Make His Home Here

Mr. and Mrs. William DeLome of The Hague, Holland, are among the interesting new arrivals in Glendale who have chosen this city as their future home. Mr. DeLome, who is a portrait painter, served in the French army during the late war, spending two years in the trenches. He is at present associated with the Title Guarantee & Trust company in Los Angeles.

They were touring America on their wedding trip, and upon reaching the coast, decided to remain permanently and are so well pleased with California, and especially with Glendale, that they are urging a brother in Holland to join them here. They have invested in a lot on Arden avenue, where construction will begin at once on a four-room bungalow, of which J. Bebbe of North Pacific avenue, is designer and builder. Pending its completition Mr. and Mrs. DeLome will make their home with their friends, Mrs. Stella Goodman, of 645 North Central avenue.

All things move in cycles.

HEAR BRIEF BITS OF EARLY LIFE IN SOUTHLAND

L. H. Myers Tells of Spanish Grant; Other Speakers Make Predictions

tree? He planted it here in what we now call Verdugo Woodlands, because he was in a country where it had to be self-supporting. Here he found the cienegas for his water supply, the Sierra Madre mountains, the San Rafael hills and the green Verdugo hills which warded off winds and storms.

"It was at the old adobe, near here, in 1806 that Tia Logena Verdugo planted the rose vine you still see today. It is the same rose vine, folks; it is the same old sun that shines which shone more than 100 years ago upon the Vedugoes; it is the same old mountains that surround you; but what has been the transformation?

"Nothing more or less than development. We have commenced to put the finishing touches here so that the rest of you may plant your roof trees in this woodlands. We have a subdivision here we are going to make one of the very finest in the city of Glendale."

Value On Property

Mr. Myers then took up a brief discussion of the things that put a value on property, pointing particularly to its people's character, the improvements, location and environment. Of the latter he said:

"All of the artists in the world cannot paint pictures for us that are painted nights and mornings in these hills."

In closing the speaker declared for the F. P. Newport company: "We are not standing for Verdugo Woodlands alone. We are not behind and east, or west, or south Glendale, but behind everything for uniting Glendale, the best for us all."

Mr. Twining already had announced that the purpose of the dinner was to get all of the local dealers acquainted with the beautiful section within the confines of "the fastest growing city in America."

Mayor Robinson sang "The Blue Bells of Scotland" and answered an encore with the song he and Harry Gerard used to warble around the clubs here, "That Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," but this time Mrs. Robinson joined in the chorus.

Make Brief Talks

City Manager W. H. Reeves said a few words about the new city park lying on the hills opposite the woodlands and Walter Jones, from whom it was purchased, was among those present. James M. Rhoades, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, praised the Newport people for bringing newcomers to Glendale and said, "In ten years Verdugo Woodlands will be the most beautiful residential district of Southern California."

"Mr. Sanders and myself are doing our best to sell Glendale. We have got to have you real estate dealers' support while you need the Chamber of Commerce to go to the four corners of the earth and get people here to buy," he concluded.

Charles B. Guthrie, who operates real estate offices here and there and everywhere, was almost speechless and could only give a little testimonial after Lon J. Haddock concluded his oration contained in other columns. He echoed the thought of "Boost, boost, boost."

In closing the evening's informal program, "Auld Lang Syne" was sung and each and every womaan present presented with a beautiful dahlia from Bryan's Verdugo Woodland gardens where 1700 different varieties now bloom.

The dinner, which was served by the Newport salesman, was prepared by Chet Robert Russell, who started the barbecue fires the day before. It was a splendid meal, including olives, radishes, beans, Spanish rice, barbecued beef, lettuce salad, stuffed Spanish peppers, coffee, biscuit, etc.

Those Noted Present

Among those present—no list can be complete and do not feel slighted if your name is omitted—were the following: Mayor and Mrs. Spencer Robinson and son Tyler, City Manager and Mrs. W. H. Reeves, Police Chief and Mrs. John D. Fraser, Realty Board President and Mrs. C. D. Thom, Mr .and Mrs. G. A. Blanchet, A. C. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. King, H. C. Yale, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McClish, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kausen and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Baird, Harry M. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Kroehle, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Cochran, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Myers, M.r and Mrs. Charles B. Guthrie, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Rhoades, E. F. Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Seidenglanz and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. M. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Von Oven, Dr Jessie A. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Truitt, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schoonmaker, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Hayward, Mrs. Edith Mae Osborne, J. E. Osborne, C. F. Wechter, J. W. Mackey, Lon J. Haddock, Alex Nibley, Ralph Dosee, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Horn, and others, including the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Twining and members of the F. P. Newport Company sales force.

There still are a few patriots among us willing to sacrifice incomes of $800 to take public jobs paying a miserable $5,000.

Dewey Goldman Has Slogan for Business

"Dewey's where quality and price excell!"

This is the slogan of the men's furnishing store at 148 South Brand boulevard, recently acquired by Dewey Goldman, who expects to sell the best grade of merchandise at the most reasonable prices.

Harry J. Syms and Henry L. Brown, who established the store last fall, have now retired from business. The deal came out of escrow today.

Mr. Goldman has been associated in the haberdashery business with relatives for the past ten years. Having had a strong desire to get into business for himself for sometime, he investigated business conditions in practically all of the suburban towns about Los Angeles. Glendale met the bill. He was impressed with the prosperous appearance of the stores here and the hustle and bustle about the town. He considers that the attitude has an invigorating effect upon the energy of the inhabitants. He is especially pleased with the reception given him by competing merchants, several of whom have welcomed him to the city, he says.
